SKIN CANCER.

Several years ago I was called to see a colored woman who had a malignant form of cancer on her foot. The cancer grew worse under the prescribed treatment, and the toes and one side of the foot were at length eaten entirely away. The patient could not have survived much longer, but I commenced the use of Swift's Specific, and it cured her sound well. That was three years ago, and there has been no return of the disease. I regard Swift's Specific a most excellent medicine for blood diseases, as its tendency is to drive out the poison.

P. H. WINSTON, DISTRICT ATTORNEY

The Mormons Will Very Likely Postpone Admission of Idaho.

MR. CALL'S OPINION OF MR. PLUMB

The Silcott Appropriation Bill—Tariff on Leather—Dependent Pension Bill to Be Favorably Reported.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—[OREGONIAN office, corner Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.]—The appointments in Washington state are nearing a solution, and though the delegation has not entirely agreed, it is quite probable that soon after the visit of the attorney-general to the president on Thursday, the court officers will be named. Senator Allen has already endorsed Mr. Hanford, and as that gentleman comes from Seattle, Senator Squire also feels in duty bound to recommend him, and it is understood that he did so to-day. Some time ago Representative Wilson recommended Judge Calkins, of Spokane Falls. Calkins, less than a year ago, moved to Washington from Indiana, and was appointed district judge by President Harrison. The attorney general the other day intimated to the senators that the president would like to appoint Judge Calkins. Senator Allen having already recommended Hanford, and that gentleman being from Squire's city, the matter is greatly complicated. It is now very probable that Wilson will have chosen the winning man with the assistance of Mr. Harrison.

Following the appointment of judge will be the district attorney, and the delegation has already recommended Patrick Henry Winston, of Spokane. Judge Calkins having taken up his residence in Tacoma, the matter of locality is settled. Winston was first recommended by Wilson, and it will be his second victory. Even if Hanford should be appointed, Winston will succeed.

The marshalship will probably go to either Brown, Hill or Berry.

Representative Wilson has all along declared that he had nothing to do with the appointment, and it seemed at one time that the senators and the president were liable to turn him down, but at present he has the best of the fight.

A delegation from Spokane Falls to use their influence on the Washington judgeship fight, are expected to arrive here some time to-night.

Representative Wilson, of Washington, has recommended John Todd, of Spokane Falls, for deputy internal revenue collector for that state. He has written to the collector recommended by the Oregon delegation, and said he wanted his man appointed, and without his going to any United States senator about it either. Wilson says that if his senators had got action early the collector might have been named from Washington. Now he intends to push through a bill to divide the district on the state line.

It is reported here that the Oregon delegation, even after having made all the recommendations, have found that everything doesn't work just right. The men who have been appointed do not in all cases name the deputies that would suit the delegation, the appointees acting independent of the delegation's wish, and there lies the trouble. It may be that some of the confirmations will be delayed until an understanding has been reached.

Governor Shoup, of Idaho, said the expenses of a state government for Idaho will necessitate an increase in the tax rate from 4 mills to 5½ mills.

Ex-Governor Stevenson said that if the Mormon church does not teach publicly or privately the obligation of plural marriages, an official declaration to that effect from the church authorities in Salt Lake will settle the question of citizenship in Idaho under the proposed constitution. They have, he said, the remedy for the evils complained of in their own hands.

The senate committee on territories this afternoon listened to statements of representatives of the Mormon church declarative of the teachings of the church in support of their argument that the constitution adopted by the people of Idaho for the new state should not be accepted by congress. Bishop Budge, president of the Mormon church in Idaho, said he had always been taught to obey the laws of the land and in forty-two years experience with Mormons he never knew any teaching to the contrary. The Mormons, he said were taught to believe in the divine inspiration of the constitution of the United States, and thus believing, he said, Mormons had a higher reverence for it than other citizens. The practice of polygamy is decreasing. On the subject of blood atonement, Budge said there was no such principle held or taught by the Mormon church.

Delegate Caine presented a declaration of officials of the church, sent out from Salt Lake City December 12, 1889, of the teachings and doctrines of the church.

It is not a sure thing that the senate committee on territories will report favorably the bill admitting Idaho. The democrats will be against it, and there may be one or two republicans who will defer reporting the bill until the supreme court passes upon the test oath. The pleas of the Mormons made to-day seem to have made some impression on the committee.

Before the house ways and means committee to-day, A. P. Ketchum, of New York, said that he was an importer and manufacturer of leather, and asked that the present duties on such goods be retained. Nearly all of the large dealers took this position, even where their manufacturing interest largely exceeded their importing interest. The leather business was in a prosperous condition and the duties were satisfactory from a protective view. French calfskins, twenty-three years ago, were largely imported into this country under a duty of 35 per cent. Although the duty had been reduced since 1883 to 20 per cent., so great had been the progress in our domestic manufacture that there were now but few skins imported.

The national executive committee appointed at the St. Louis silver convention met here to-day. A sub-committee consisting of Fitch, Fixley and Barbour was appointed to draw up a plan of work for the executive committee to pursue during the meeting. A permanent bureau will be established in this city to look after the interests of free coinage. The committee of five appointed to draw up and publish an address to congress and to the people will be in attendance at this meeting, and will probably issue their addresses immediately after conferring with the members of the executive committee.

Congressman Carter of Montana, chairman of the committee on mines and mining, has called a meeting of his committee for next Monday morning. Several hearings will be held, at which those who wish may present their views of legislation on the measures that are likely to come before the committee.

Senator Mitchell's bill appropriating $150,000 for a public building at The Dalles, and Senator Dolph's bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Salem have been agreed to by the committee on public buildings and grounds, and will be reported favorably without amendment.

Senator Mitchell introduced to-day a bill which legalizes the testimony taken before either a register or a receiver of a land office, if either official is dead, sick or unable to be present at the hearing. The secretary of the interior will not approve land claims under the law as it now stands. The senator's attention was called to the matter by the death of one of the officers of the land office at La Grande, Or., where about fifty proofs were made before a single officer, but they could not be perfected on account of the vacancy. The law is designed to cover this case, but applies to the whole country.

Secretary Noble to-day passed in a decision which orders a patent to be issued to Congressman Hansbrough, of North Dakota, on his homestead at Devil's Lake. The entry is for the southeast quarter of section 28, township 156, range 64. The land department canceled his claim in 1886, claiming that he had not maintained his residence on his homestead in accordance with the law. Mr. Hansbrough was postmaster at Devil's Lake. The claim was advanced that his homestead was beyond the limit of the territory in which mail was delivered from his office. As it was held that his residence was not within his postal bailiwick, his claim was cancelled. After reviewing the evidence in the case, the secretary holds that the law was complied with in good faith, and reverses the decision of the former land commissioner. He orders that a patent be issued to the congressman.

The senate committee on pensions to-day unanimously directed Chairman Davis to report the dependent pension bill. The title of the bill reads as follows: "A bill granting pensions to soldiers and sailors who are incapacitated for the performance of labor, and providing for pensions to their widows, minor children and dependent parents."

The senate committee on finance to-day continued consideration of Senator Sherman's bill to declare trusts unlawful. After adopting several amendments which do not affect the principle or scope of the measure, the committee ordered a favorable report to be made to the senate.

James Campbell, representing the window glass manufacturers, asked for restoration of the tariff of 1883.

Britton Richardson, a New Jersey silk manufacturer, wanted a duty of 50 per cent. instead of 20 per cent. imposed upon silk hat trimmings. He complained of the recent decision of the supreme court, declaring that silk ribbons used exclusively for hat trimmings are dutiable at 20 per cent.

State Senator Griggs, of New Jersey, said the silk trade regarded this decision as the most serious assault ever sustained by it.

Chairman McKinley said he would call the attention of the committee to the matter, and, if consent was secured, take up this proposition immediately as a separate question.

W. F. Wakeman, representing the Cattle-growers' Association, asked a duty of 1½ cents a pound on manufactured hides, whether pickled or unpickled. There were many sections of the West where hides were frequently burned for fuel, the price being too low to warrant their shipment.

IN THE SENATE.

Plumb Defends Swamp Land Grabbers and Is Roasted by Call.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the senate, among the bills reported from committees and placed on the calendar were the following: To declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and production (Sherman's bill); authorizing the purchase of a site for a building for the supreme court.

George offered a resolution instructing the committee on finance to inquire into the propriety of reducing the penal bonds required of manufacturers of cigars in all cases, or at least where the manufacture is carried on by the manual labor of the manufacturer; referred.

The resolutions heretofore offered by Call in relation to the claims of Florida under the swamp land grant and in relation to the alleged unlawful selections of land in Florida were taken up, and Call addressed the senate. The burden of his remarks was that lands which where not swamp and overflowed, but which were fit for cultivation, had been selected under the swamp land act, to the injury of the people's right. He asserted that 200,000,000 acres had been selected and approved in all the states as swamp and overflowed lands, while everybody knew there was no such extent of territory—as large as Europe—consisting of swamp and overflowed lands. Of over 16,000,000 acres which had passed in Florida under the swamp and overflowed land act he asserted that 11,000,000 were high and dry.

Plumb said Florida contained about 40,000,000 acres, and more than one-half of this had been given by the United States to the state for various purposes. Every single acre of land so granted has been placed under control of the legislature of Florida. Some sixteen or eighteen million acres had been granted as swamp and overflowed lands. Senator Call had just told the senate that most of it was not swamp, but arable land. So much greater was the dereliction of the senator's state if it had betrayed its trust. For himself, he would resign his seat if he were to bring forward such a complaint against his own state after being too cowardly to proclaim it on the stump within it.

Plumb went on to say that Call had, some sessions ago, appealed to him as chairman of the committee on public lands to report a bill to satisfy and confirm the title to certain railroad lands in Florida, so that all the alleged frauds were to be condoned under certain circumstances, but were never to be condoned in a speech. The senator, he said, had been always in the habit of impugning senators covertly or openly, and he (Plumb) had sometimes been inclined to reply to him, but not to convict him of falsehood.

Call replied to Plumb. He said: "I will not be moved Mr. President, by this extraordinary example of the senator from Kansas to follow his bad manners, nor his contemptible methods. He cannot have a poorer opinion of me than I have of the senator from Kansas. I have not been in the habit of violating the decorum of debate and discussion, but if the senator thinks by his idle bravado, by his defense of this vast spoliation of the public domain in the interest of those who have profited by it, that he can intimidate me from defending the rights of the people of my state, I treat him with the scorn and contempt that he deserves. My position is well known in relation to the question in the state of Florida. The officials of that state are as honorable and able as the senator from Kansas. By their side he would sink into insignificance. The statements of the senator in relation to their violation of a trust are entirely untrue, and as chairman of the committee on public lands, which has jurisdiction over the matter, he should be ashamed not to be better informed in regard to the special circumstances. It is disreputable to the senate that it should have as chairman of that committee a senator who not only defends the interests of the boodler, but shows his ignorance of the subject specially committed to him. All the senator has said about the legislature of Florida is utterly false and untrue, and has been said for the purpose of making an attack against me."

Having made a statement as to grants of Florida for railroad purposes and under the swamp land law, Call proceeded: "If the things he says were true, and if I were as bad a man as he is, as weak a man as he is, as vain a man as he is, even if I were all he is himself and all he says I am, still it would remain true that a large number of people have been deprived of their rights to these lands."

Dolph, as a member of the committee on public lands, made an explanation and justification of the action of that committee in the last congress in respect to the resolution of Call on the same subject, and Call disclaimed having made or attempted to make the slightest imputation on that committee.

Without action on the resolution the senate, after an executive session, adjourned.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent to the senate to-day:

Collectors of customs: Frank A. Stewart, Southern district of Oregon (Coos bay); Edward A. Taylor, district of Oregon, Astoria. Charles U. Snider, receiver of public moneys at Lakeview, Or.; Ezra A. Bowen, register of the land office at Vancouver, Wash.; Egbert Nasholds, agent of the Lemhi Indians, Idaho.

IN THE HOUSE.

Debate on the Bill to Make Good Silcott's Defalcation Begun.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the house McKinley, from the committee on ways and means reported back the bill to simplify the laws relating to collection of revenue. It was ordered printed and recommitted.

Perkins of Kansas moved that the house go into committee of the whole for consideration of the bill to provide for townsite entries of lands in Oklahoma. This was antagonized by Adams of Illinois, who wished the house to consider the Silcott matter, and the motion was defeated, 65 to 97. Bland demanded tellers.

The friends of the Oklahoma bill were again defeated, 96 to 105, and Adams called up the Silcott report, accompanied by a bill appropriating $75,000 to reimburse the members. Adams argued in favor of the bill, holding that the sergeant-at-arms was a public officer.

Hemphill of South Carolina advocated the adoption of his bill permitting members to bring suit in the court of claims for recovery of their salaries, and opposed the bill of the majority because he could find no statute declaring the sergeant-at-arms a disbursing officer. He thought they should not appropriate public money to pay his debts.

Holman contended that the fund remaining in the office of the sergeant-at-arms ($8000), should be divided pro rata among the members who were losers by the defalcation. Pending further debate the house adjourned.

Northwestern Postoffices.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—[Special Telegram.]—The postoffice department heard Representative Hermann to-day as to the petition presented by him by citizens in Union county, in Oregon, asking for a mail service from Hilgard, in that county, to Starkie Prairie. A postoffice will be established at the latter place, with G. F. Dunn as postmaster.

Postoffices were to-day established at Lamu, Harney county, Or., with Elizabeth Norman as postmistress, and at Oakley, Harney county, Or., with P. H. Gray postmaster.

TAKEN TO LIFE CELLS.

The Court Refuses New Trial to the Cronin Killers.

HURRIED IN IRONS TO JOLIET

Kunze, Coughlin's Partner, Should Not Have Been Convicted.

NEW TRIAL WILL SET HIM FREE

Judge McConnell Confesses Surprise at the Reasoning of the Jury—Assassins Protest Innocence Before Sentence.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Judge McConnell this afternoon granted the motion of John Kunze for a new trial in the Cronin case, but denied the application to the principal defendants, Martin Burke, Daniel Coughlin and Patrick O'Sullivan.

Forrest asked the usual stay of execution until a supersedeas could be secured. The state's attorney protested vigorously, demanding that the prisoners be sent at once to Joliet.

Judge McConnell intimated that he would be willing to grant a stay for the sake of humanity if he were sure he had authority to do so, saying he had given the matter some attention and could find no authority.

Forrest made quite an extended appeal, showing what an injustice would be done if defendants were compelled to go to the penitentiary and were afterwards given a new trial and acquitted. He also said that all the other judges of Cook county except Anthony had been in the habit of granting a stay when assured that the case would be taken up.

Judge McConnell finally announced that he would defer a decision until he could consult other judges to find out on what authority they acted.

Kunze was then admitted to bail in the sum of $5000. The state's attorney opposed the motion for bail, and subsequently contended for $20,000. Judge McConnell, however, did not coincide, and explained that he would have discharged Kunze if there were no new evidence against him, but the state's attorney had informed him that there was some. The state's attorney intimated that if they let Kunze stay in jail for a few days he might conclude not to bring him to trial at once, but let him go. He promised to let the court and counsel know this week, and accordingly no effort will be made to get Kunze on bail in the meantime.

IT WAS A FAIR TRIAL.

Judge McConnell in his decision said in part: I think it would be mere pretense for me to take time to deliberate on this matter. I would not arrive at a different conclusion in several days than I have now. It has weighed upon my mind during the trial that defendants should have a fair trial. Since its conclusion it has weighed upon my mind whether they had a fair trial, whether the jury had reached such a conclusion. Within limits a judge has a right to question whether a verdict was just. It was a just one. Judge Wing said the defendants were prejudiced by not having been granted a separate trial, yet the trial disproves this, because the theory generally accepted by the public and urged by the state, that the conspiracy was formed in camp 20, was not accepted by the jury, as shown by the acquittal of Beggs.

"As to the jury, of course it is more satisfactory to the trial judge to have a jury of men absolutely without opinion as to the merits of the case, and this course was followed in securing the first four jurors, but was dropped when it became evident it would be impossible to obtain such a jury in the county. The impression of the trial judge as to the character of a juror, from his whole examination, would be taken by a higher court as the judgment of a jury, from the manner in which the question was approached. I am convinced that if any one had watched the manner of the trial judge during this trial, they would have been certain the court was determined to have a fair jury."

"As to the evidence, the judge is not called upon to say whether if on the jury he would have come to the same conclusion. As to one of these defendants I am convinced the evidence is insufficient. First, the evidence against John Kunze by James, who saw him in a window across the street and never saw him again until in court. I do not think his identification is reliable. I also question the identification of William Mertes, who claims to have seen Kunze one evening. Nieman, a saloon keeper, did not identify Kunze positively. This murder sprang out of Irish politics someway, it is not necessary to even conjecture how; but there is no motive for Kunze to have taken part in the crime. Even if Mertes and James were to be believed and Nieman had been more positive, there is no difficulty in reconciling these facts with his innocence. I mean to say he might have been in the Clark street flat and all the other places, and still have been innocent. I believe the verdict of the jury was not only unwarranted by the evidence, but was an absurdity. As to the other defendants I overrule motion for a new trial."

Little Kunze was on his feet in an instant, blurting out in his broken English: "I thank you, your honor. I am very much obliged for your kindness."

"You are not indebted to me for any kindness," said the court.

"Is there any motion for an arrest of judgment," asked the court. Mr. Forrest knew of no ground for one, but made it to have it on record. The court overruled it and asked if the prisoners had anything to say.

THEY PROTEST THEIR INNOCENCE.

There was a moment of suspense, and then Dan Coughlin arose and said in firm tones: "Your honor, I am innocent. I was convicted by perjurers."

O'Sullivan's voice trembled slightly as he said: "I have not much to say. I protest my innocence before God and man. The time is not far distant when it will be shown that I was convicted by a prejudiced jury and perjured evidence. I do not ask for mercy; I ask for justice. I have not had justice."

Burke stopped chewing gum long enough to say: "I am innocent; I always knew that in England they allowed perjurers to go on the stand and convict innocent men, but I never knew it was done in America."

THE ASSASSINS SENTENCED.

A moment's silence followed, and then the court said: "Will the prisoners rise." The three men arose, and the court imposed sentence in the following words:

"Following and confirming the verdict of the jury, the judgment of the court is that you be taken to the penitentiary at Joliet, and there be confined for the term of your natural lives."

Coughlin and Burke heard the words without change of countenance, but O'Sullivan's lips quivered, and his face had a worn, pinched expression.

The defense was granted sixty days to file a bill of exceptions. It was announced that Lawyers Forrest, Donahoe and Wing had been retained to take the case to the supreme court in the March term.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—To night Coughlin, Burke and O'Sullivan were hurried from jail, strongly manacled, and taken to Joliet on the 9 o'clock train. They arrived at the penitentiary about midnight, and with little ado were put into solitary confinement until to-morrow morning, when they will be formally entered and clad in prison garb.

The sudden transfer was a great surprise to the prisoners. It appears that State's Attorney Longenecker decided early in the evening to take immediate advantage of the ruling of Judge McConnell, and at once gave orders to Sheriff Matson to have the prisoners removed to the penitentiary.

Kansas City Editor Assaulted.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 14.—Charles Jones assaulted Hammerslaugh on the street to-day. Jones is a son of Major Jones, superintendent of the National Waterworks Company, and Hammerslaugh is proprietor of the Kansas City Globe. Hammerslaugh did not strike back, but contented himself with guarding his face. The men were finally separated and Jones taken to the police station, where Hammerslaugh preferred charges of disturbing the peace, and Jones gave bail for $100. Articles which have appeared in the Globe, and which Jones considered derogatory to the honesty of his father, inspired the assault.

The amendments to [illegible] were adopted and the bill was discussed at length. A PROTEST TO THE POWERS.

The government has sent a circular note to the powers relative to the dispute with England. It alleges that England did not wait for the reply of Senor Gomez of January 10 to the note of Lord Salisbury, but submitted her ultimatum on mere reports that Major Serpa Pinto had disobeyed telegraphic orders sent him by the Portuguese government. In compliance with the wishes of Lord Salisbury, Major Pinto, the note says, quitted Nyassaland and the Shire district three weeks ago, some time prior to the sending of orders, and is now sick at Mozambique.

The note further says that Senor Gomez never alluded to arbitration during the negotiations, but suggested throughout the holding of an international conference to settle the difficulty.

EAST FAIRHAVEN
Best Investment on the [illegible]

A careful investigation of the situation which exists on Bellingham [illegible] today will convince any shrewd man of affairs that the foundation of a city has been laid at Fairhaven and that the work to that end has begun in earnest. Natural resources (coal, iron, lumber and agriculture) are [illegible] inexhaustible quantities, it has an incomparable harbor; great mills, building, rows of brick buildings, including a magnificent hotel, are erected, miles of streets are being graded and sidewalks laid; new industries are springing up and new lines of business are being opened every [illegible]. Shipping is increasing every hour. People are flocking there by thousands and the tributary country is settling with a phenomenal rapidity. Fairhaven has two railroads building in different directions. The town, moreover, backed up by a powerful land company that is nursing, building and developing it on liberal and broad gauge principles. Any sagacious person will calmly look the situation over, can not fail to recognize the fact that the history of Tacoma is to be repeated at Fairhaven.

EAST FAIRHAVEN ADDITION is less than a mile back of the [illegible] and commands a beautiful view of the town and bay. Streets are 60 [illegible] feet wide and correspond with the streets of Fairhaven. Donovan avenue, [illegible] feet wide, is being improved its entire distance, from Fairhaven to East Fairhaven, and planked, and will be the main thoroughfare from [illegible] Valley and the outlying additions.

MEATS ROASTED IN THEIR OWN JUICES, BY USING THE WIRE GAUZE OVEN DOOR
FOUND EXCLUSIVELY ON THE CHARTER OAK
STOVES & RANGES.

EXCELSIOR MANF'G CO. CHARTER OAK 612-618 MAIN ST. ST. LOUIS, MO.

There is not a Cooking Apparatus made using the Solid Oven Door but that the loss in weight of meat is from twenty-five to forty per cent. of the meat roasted. In other words, a rib of beef, weighing ten pounds if roasted medium to well-done will lose three pounds. The same roasted in the CHARTER OAK RANGE using the WIRE GAUZE OVEN DOOR, loses about one pound.

To allow meat to shrink is to lose a large portion of its juices and flavor. The fibres do not separate, and it becomes tough, tasteless and unpalatable.

It possesses all the sedative, anodyne and antispasmodic powers of Opium, but produces no sickness of the stomach, no vomiting, no costiveness, no headache. In acute nervous disorders it is an invaluable remedy, and is recommended by the best Physicians.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 15.

OREGONIANA.

It cost Union county $54,746 13 to meet the current expenses for 1889. The public debt of the county is $50,932 26

A little paper called The Clionian, devoted to the interests of deaf-mutes, has made its appearance in Portland. It will be published monthly by Llewellyn & Kingsley.

The Coast Mail of Marshfield is endeavoring to rouse the citizens of that place to establish a Board of Trade. The organization, it is thought, would influence favorably some needed public improvements.

The people of La Grande are rather proud of their railroad facilities. One day recently there were six passenger trains, the rotary snow plow combination and about two miles of freight cars in the yards. At one time fourteen engines were moving back and forth, and the roundhouse held ten more.

Talking of old-time governors of this state and territory, Postmaster Bell in the Astorian says that Governor Gaines was not killed by Indians in Idaho in 1854; that he was nominated by the whigs at Corvallis in 1855 or 1856, against Lane, and died about 1858. He lies buried at Salem, where a marble monument is erected to his memory.

At present men are at work developing a fifteen-foot vein of coal that is within one mile of Castle Rock, and, the Advocate claims, in the early spring of 1890 not less than 1000 tons of coal will be shipped from Castle Rock daily. The coal is a first-class quality of lignite. Besides this mine, there are four others within five miles of town on which some development work has been done and the quality of the coal proven to be good.

The Chehalpum grange of Jefferson, Marion county, has adopted a set of resolutions, opposing the appropriations by the last legislature of $126,000 for laying out, locating and working on highways, and the members have pledged themselves not to vote for any man who will not promise to use his influence against such legislation. The grange also looks with disfavor upon the creation of non-taxable bonds, and has approved of the Australian method of voting.

It is not improbable, says the La Grande Gazette, that the Blue mountain region abounds in natural gas. A couple of the operators of the Grand Ronde mill assert that a peculiar odor was detected along the river above the mill, and one of them applied a match and a flash of fire was the result, burning the prospector's whiskers. A gentleman who is familiar with the natural gas regions of the East gives his opinion that the formation of this country and its geological make-up is very similar to those districts.

WASHINGTONIANA.

Along the shores of Gibraltar harbor is a deposit of cement which would render it unnecessary to build stone walls for dry docks. The cement will hold the water in the excavated docks just as well as stone walls would.

Two young men living on Cedar creek, says the Winlock Pilot, who were out hunting, had wounded a deer and were following its trail when they ran into a bear den. As it was getting late in the evening they concluded to go home and go back the next day. They succeeded next morning not only in finding the deer, but the bear as well. They killed the latter, and, searching further, found a cub one week old.

There are several oyster shippers in Big Skookum bay this winter and they gather and ship many sacks of oysters to Seattle and Tacoma. This brings considerable money into Shelton and oyster men are making a permanent industry by cultivating and planting their oyster beds. Prices are very good just now, although dealers are rather wary of a big supply at times, because of the possibility of a freeze up.

The Chehalis Bee evidently is not clear as to its conception of the legal fraternity. It says "it is well known the lawyers occupy every room that is occupied on the second floor of the First National bank building. Each office has a coal-bin in the hallway, and each bin is securely locked, which led to the query by an observing individual whether the lawyers locked their boxes against each other or whether they feared a nocturnal visit from some of their clients.

The Spokane Falls Review adopts the following neat way of scoring a point against its rivals: Spokane Falls is a great town for the newsboys. The street sales are something wonderful for a city of its size. Yesterday's Review, containing the first news of the killing of "Big Mac," was in great demand. Although 500 extras were printed, the edition was soon exhausted. Later in the day the Sunday Globe was thrown on the street, and in an hour a surprising number had been sold. Then the Chronicle came out, and sold readily.

Montesano, says the Vidette, had a steady, constant growth until the population of the town reached 1500, almost entirely without the aid of manufacturing establishments. But now, as enterprises are beginning to be started, mills to be operated, and others seeking locations here; with the railroad terminus, shipping facilities of the town, and the continued development and clearing of the excellent agricultural land tributary to the city, it seems a foregone conclusion that Montesano will grow more rapidly than ever, and that the business of the town has a well-established backing.

WAS HE EVER HERE?

A Preacher States That There is No Mud in Portland, Or.

In a recent issue of the Ithaca, N. Y., Journal the following paragraph is found:

> At a prayer meeting held in the First Methodist church last week, a lady expressed her inability to see why certain things were thus, and so was especially severe upon Providence for inflicting so much mud upon mankind. She said: "No matter how much I may clean, my house is continually tracked with mud; my porches are kept in a filthy condition, and it's nothing but mud, mud, mud." When the speaker finished, the pastor arose and remarked: "I cannot conclude this meeting without saying that God is not responsible for the mud; in fact if there were no men there would be no mud. Moreover, in Portland, Oregon, where it rains about six months in the year, there is no mud, for the simple reason that they have men there who know enough to make roads."

Some unbelieving people will be inclined to dispute every statement made by this preacher. In the first place, it is generally acknowledged that it rains here thirteen months in the year, and there is slathers of mud here, for the simple reason that people here do not know how to make roads. As men were made from mud, it is clear that if there were no men there would be more mud, because a great deal has been used up in making so many men, to say nothing of the women, and the cry still is, "more mud." Portland should extend a call to that Ithaca preacher.

GRAND ENGLISH OPERA.

The Coming Season at the Marquam Grand by the Emma Juch Company.

The coming season of grand English opera commencing by the Emma Juch Grand English Opera Company is attracting more attention in fashionable and musical circles than any other engagement this season. The Juch organization is pronounced by the press of Washington, Baltimore, New York, Philadelphia and other cities they have visited so far this season, to be the largest and most important musical organization in America. When the fact that the numerical strength of this company is over 150 people, and that it requires a special train of seven cars and an engine to transport them from point to point, is taken into consideration, it is not a matter of wonder that it is considered the leading amusement organization of this country, and is larger than any other traveling company on the face of the globe.

During Miss Juch's recent engagement in Washington she was the recipient of more social attention than was probably ever bestowed upon any American artist before. Her performances there were attended by President Harrison, Mrs. Harrison, Secretary Halford and family, Secretary Blaine and family, Secretary Tracy, of the navy, and family, Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, Lady Pauncefote and her charming daughter, the French, Russian, German and Austrian ministers, the Spanish envoy, and, in fact, the chiefs of all foreign legations, not forgetting the Chinese embassy, who, resplendent in gorgeous oriental raiment, occupied one or more of the boxes at every performance. During the week Miss Juch was received privately at the White house by Mrs. Harrison, entertained there, and was made the recipient of many musical floral offerings sent to her during her different performances by the first lady of the land. The Baltimore engagement following was a repetition of the social, artistic and financial triumphs of Washington.

Among the many prominent singers to be found with Miss Juch are Charles Hedmont, Frank Baxter, William Castle, Susie Leonhardt, Laura Bellini, Lizzie Macnichol, Alonzo Stoddard, William Bott, E. N. Knight, Franz Vetta and F. S. Guise. The repertoire for the first week will embrace these operas: Monday, "Mignon," with Juch as Mignon; Tuesday, "Maritana;" Wednesday, "Carmen," Juch as Carmen; Thursday, "Postillion of Lonjumeau;" Friday, "Der Freischutz;" Saturday matinee, "Faust," with Juch in her famous impersonation of Marguerite; Saturday evening, "Il Trovatore." The various operas will be staged in a splendid manner. The chorus will consist of fifty fresh and powerful voices, and the orchestra will number forty carefully selected musicians, under the direction of Ad. Neuendorff, the well-known leader.

CONTROL OF ELECTRICITY.

The Public Should Be Taught Care Rather Than Over-Confidence.

PORTLAND, Or., Jan. 13, 1890.—[To THE EDITOR.]—An article in to-day's OREGONIAN, headed "Control of Electricity," reads very much like an advertisement of the overhead system of electric railways, in spite of the fact of its being signed by "An Uninterested Electrician." The writer is evidently a "mugwump" in the science; one who sides with neither party, Edison or Westinghouse, low or high tension. It is all the same to him, so long as the public will believe that 550 volts pressure, as used on the overhead system of electric railways, is perfectly harmless. In proof of which statement he says: "I will grasp the lamp socket of the platform lamp on a motor car in one hand and the brake wheel in the other, making a ground through my body." Reckless man! For the sake of the public he would take as much risk as a baby does when it grasps its milk bottle. As a matter of fact the exposed part of the lamp socket is, or should be, perfectly insulated, so that any one can perform the trick stated with as little risk as the uninterested "electrician." Undertakers and other interested parties would much prefer to have him prove the harmlessness of the overhead system by taking the full current from the overhead wire through his body, as would be the case should the wire break and drop on a passer by. Let us see what he would receive then. We will suppose that the dynamo is capable of generating a current of 100 amperes (and if it has the capacity it is sure to generate it if the line is grounded) with a pressure of 550 volts. This equals 55,000 Watts; over seventy-three electrical horse power—a low estimate for an overhead electrical railway, yet probably enough to paralyze this uninterested writer. I do not claim to be an electrician, but feel certain that the manager of the Willamette Falls Electric Company, or the city electrician will prove to the satisfaction of any inquirer that under some circumstances even fifty volts may by induction become increased to 2500 or more. Would it not be better to take every possible precaution against accident, and instead of making the public careless through over-confidence, teach them to avoid the wires? I trust the uninterested electrician will not lose his life by monkeying with lamp sockets.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

A STORY OF ANDERSONVILLE.

Told by a Man Who Helped to Hang the Six Raiders.

EAST PORTLAND, Jan. 12.—[TO THE EDITOR.]—I have seen several accounts in your paper written by those who claim to have been inmates of the never to be forgotten prison pen of Andersonville. The one headed Springfield, Mass., Jan. 10, with regard to E. W. Nichols being chosen sheriff to hang ten men in the prison, is a fraud from the beginning to the end. There were never ten men hung there, but we did hang six men, on the 11th of July, 1864, and I tell you we did not ask one man to do the hanging, for if there was any one within the stockade that was opposed to the hanging outside of the candidates themselves, they were men that were in some way implicated in the same crimes for which we were hanging those six.

We tried them by a court-martial, the same as in the army, and found those six guilty of murder. We passed sentence of death on them and old Wirz would not let us hang them for fear our men in the North would retaliate and hang six of their men. We of the jury that had tried the prisoners wrote up a petition stating what the condemned men had done and why we had thus passed sentence on them. We sent the petition through our lines to Atlanta to General Sherman. He signed the petition to hang them and sent the papers back to us, and then Wirz gave his consent and furnished us lumber wherewith to build the scaffold. Now I am one that had a hand in all the proceedings, and we all thought at the time, and I think to this day, we did a good thing for ourselves and the world at large, when we strung them up. Now the paper from Springfield says the veterans shunned the man Nichols on account of his work of hanging the men at Andersonville. I will say here that is a falsehood, and I am one that took part in all the proceedings and hanging, and am a member of the G. A. R., and I am not afraid of my comrades shunning me for what I thought best there.

I was a prisoner in Andersonville eighteen months and nineteen days, and am acquainted with all that transpired in that place during that time. Now those that are interested can see a fine picture of Andersonville by calling at G. A. R. hall in Portland, or at my house corner Fourth and C, East Portland. Can also see in the picture the hanging of the six raiders.

An Old Woman Found Dead in a Chair—An Impromptu Bath in the Willamette—The Madison Street Bridge

Y M C A. REPORT —The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, was held in the parlors of the association last evening. In the absence of J Thorburn Ross, the president I A Macrum was chosen chairman. The report of Noel H Jacks, the acting secretary was read which showed a healthy condition of the work. In his report Mr Jacks stated There are 160 young men in the various educational classes 53 in the gymnasium and six lessons a week are given by the teacher of physical culture. Average daily attendance in reading room 250 average attendance on Sunday afternoon meetings 200 Saturday night meetings 55. 19 members have been received since November 1st. March 1st will see the association free from debt. By unanimous vote a call was extended Mr Noel H Jacks who for the past fourteen months has been traveling secretary for the association. A call was also sent to Mr F P Fay of San Francisco to become the financial secretary. Miss Jennie E Edget, was engaged as elocutionist. Next Friday evening another informal reception will be given to young men and athletic contests will take place in the gymnasium by members of the class. The reception and a[illegible] admittance to the gymnasium is free to members and their gentlemen friends.

A LITTLE TOO PREVIOUS —The place was in a public hall. The time, to all in the room except one, who thought that there was no time like the present, was about 1 o clock in the afternoon. Among the dramatis personæ were Governor Pennoyer and ex Governor Moody. Ex Governor Moody had occasion to go out, and in doing so, he took Governor Pennoyer's hat by mistake. A look of amazement, not unmixed with pensive reflection, overspread the countenance of Oregon's governor as he noted the fascinating expression on the ex governor's face in taking the gubernatorial hat. "Isn't that a little previous?" asked some one in the room. Governor Pennoyer thought it was as he believed himself entitled to his hat at least until the next state election. When ex-Governor Moody returned he was profuse with apologies. Pennoyer said it was all right, but he told Moody not to do it again unless, possibly, after the votes are counted.

GERMAN AID SOCIETY —The annual meeting of the German Aid Society was held yesterday evening, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. John Wagner, president; C Caesar vice president; G von Wintzingerode secretary and agent; F Dekum treasurer; C H Meussdorffer L Levy and D W Hoelbing trustees; F G Alex Mayer, I Reisacher and C Bercher advisory committee and Dr Otto Binswanger, society physician. The secretary reported a membership of 149 and the financial report showed a total fund of $21,608 40 on hand. Of this sum $21 262 10 is deposited and $[illegible] is on hand for immediate use. The total of moneys disbursed during the past year in charitable work $1224 75. The society is doing good work and its financial report shows it to be in a prosperous condition.

INTO THE COLD WILLAMETTE.—About 4 o clock yesterday morning as W T Moore and L A Glen OREGONIAN compositors, were waiting for the Stark street ferry, they heard a faint cry for help from up the river. On going down into the Waukegan boat house they discovered a man clinging to one of the piles of the Washington street wharf. They launched a boat and pulled the shivering exhausted wretch in out of the wet and took him into the engine room of THE OREGONIAN office to warm and dry himself. He gave his name as E S Cahill, of Illinois, a railroad laborer. He had taken more liquor than was good for him and had walked off the wharf.

OREGON CITY MOTOR LINE —The principal portion of the stock in D P Thompson's motor line to Oregon City is as good as subscribed, parties having made application for it who will put down their names as soon as the books are opened. Many persons are making applications daily for positions on the road and for work on surveying the line etc. The company have about decided to equip the road with Wagner reclining chair cars so that the passengers can whirl around in their seats to admire the beauties of nature on either hand to watch the salmon leaping in the river and then turn to admire the deer skipping over the hills.

GOLD IN THE SANTIAM DISTRICT —A R Campbell who returned from his mining claims in the Santiam district a short time ago brought back with him some very fine samples of gold bearing rock which he is exhibiting to admirers of the yellow metal. The specimens contain what by miners is termed wire gold, the metal appearing in a free state in small fissures and breaks in the rock. The rock was taken from the White Bull mountains in the Black Bear extension and Golden Ridge ledges. Some of it is very fine and assays as high as $600 to the ton.

DEATH OF EDWIN HUTH —Edwin Huth, a well known stage carpenter died of quick consumption at the Banquet lodging house yesterday morning. The remains were removed to the undertaking rooms of George H Kiver from which place the funeral will take place this afternoon. The name of the deceased is associated with the erection of Cort's new theater in Seattle and he was rated as one of the best stage carpenters on the coast. He was 20 years of age and had only been in the city a few days when death overtook him.

MADISON STREET BRIDGE —The work of driving piles for the Madison street bridge will be begun as soon as the weather will permit. The piles are all cut and in the water but are frozen in somewhere on the Columbia. Parties are figuring on the masonry work for the pivotal pier but the contract has not been let. The petition of the Madison Street Bridge Company for a franchise to build a street railway from the bridge up Madison to Eighth street will probably be acted upon by the council to night.

A LONELY DEATH—At noon yesterday Coroner DeLin was notified that an old woman had died, while alone at South Fifth street. Upon investigation he found that Mrs McGwinthe an old lady about 65 years of age had died in her room while in a sitting posture. Mr McGwinthe the husband of the deceased is sick at Saint Vincent hospital and is not expected to live. It is thought that the old lady died of natural causes still an investigation will be made by the coroner.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS —At the annual meeting of the Northwest Fire and Marine Insurance Company, the stockholders agreed to increase the number of directors by admitting two new members, W T Slater of Salem and S L Young of Albany. The following members of the old board were re elected. J Loewenberg C H Sitton J K. Gill, F K. Arnold, J McCraken, F M Warren D D Oliphant, H L Pittock and Frederick Eggert.

READY TO BE MOVED —The old Fourth street corporation shed, so long the abode of truck No 1, hook and ladder is blocked up ready to commence its journey to the corner of Nineteenth and R streets where it will do service for the fire department for some time to come. The moving tackle will be put in place at once and if the weather permits in a few days more it will be rolling along the streets towards its new resting place.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS —At a meeting of the stockholders of the Northwest Loan & Trust Company held at the office of the company yesterday the following directors were elected to serve during the present year. George B Markle George H. Williams Thomas F Osborne Charles Francis Beebe Herbert Bradley J A Sladen G A Mooney C A. Alisky, J Thorburn Ross H Thielsen, J L Hartman D P Sherman and S B Willey.

HART STILL AT LARGE —Frank Hart, the diamond thief who escaped from the city jail after being brought back from Seattle is still at large although every effort is being made to find him. The young thief no doubt thinks it politic to remain in hiding at least until there is a change in the weather. Walking is a little bad just now and he would be able to make but slow progress were he to follow in the footsteps of Gibbs.

OREGON BICYCLE CLUB —The Oregon Bicycle club run off their quarterly championship races at the Mechanics pavilion to-night. Among the starters will be Dr Newcastle H Brown J B Bridges and a number of others whose names could not be obtained. GLEANED FROM COURT RECORDS

Has No Jurisdiction—Trial Jurors Murder Case—Various Legal Items—Before the Municipal Tribunals

In the case of the United States vs Chas. Lewis indicted for assault on P Norber with intent to commit a felony Judge Sabin in the United States circuit court, held yesterday that as the assault charged against Lewis was committed in Pyramid bay Alaska the matter was within the jurisdiction of the United States court of Alaska and the court here had no jurisdiction in the matter. He also held that the indictment did not charge any crime. On motion of the district attorney the indictment was dismissed and this will probably be end of the matter as Norberg who was kicked and beaten will hardly go to Alaska to prosecute Lewis there.

ALLOWED TO GO HENCE

A Sheets of Eugene city charged with selling liquor to Indians was arraigned in the United States district court yesterday and pleaded guilty. Judge Sabin made an order suspending judgment in the case and the prisoner was allowed to go hence.

TRIAL JURORS—THE MURDER CASE.

The list of trial jurors summoned to appear in the United States circuit court yesterday was called, and about half the list answered to their names. The others are probably delayed on account of blockaded trains. As some of the witnesses in the case of James O Brien charged with robbing the postoffice at Cottage Grove were not able to be present on account of trains being blockaded the case was postponed till to day and the jurors excused till 10 o clock this morning.

The case of Pilio, an Indian charged with murder on the Umatilla reservation was set for trial yesterday, but Deputy United States Marshal Furnish telegraphed from Pendleton that owing to trains being blockaded, he could not get the witnesses here. The case was continued till Tuesday January 21.

The State and County Courts

Mrs. Margaret Raleigh the wife of John S Raleigh an insane person petitioned the county court yesterday for an allowance from her husband's estate for the support of herself and three minor children.

In her petition she alleges that the estate of which B Orth is the legal custodian is worth $17,000, yielding an annual revenue of $1180 and that it costs but $25 per month to maintain the patient.

The court made an order allowing the petitioner $50 monthly.

TO RECOVER ON A NOTE

C. R. Drew has begun proceedings in the circuit court against the Port and Cement Company for $3750 on a promissory note made by the defendants on the 5th of September 1891.

GATHERING OF THE EAGLES

The following attachment suits were begun in the circuit court yesterday against the shoe factory destroyed by fire at Southside about two weeks ago.

Williams Bros & Co to recover a balance due in the sum of $391 89.

D B Kent for a judgment in the sum of $85 40 for goods sold and delivered.

Garnishments were subsequently served upon Durphy's insurance policies in the hands of the Lancashire Hamburg & Bremen Imperial Northwestern & California companies.

THE GRAND JURY'S WORK

Indictments were yesterday returned against the following four prisoners. James Coleman and Frank Murphy accused of stealing a quantity of clothing from the store of A Roberts on the 22d inst. William Gulvin and Frank Harr the two boys captured on the Sound charged with stealing a lot of valuable jewelry from Mrs Sickles in the Neppach house on the 4th inst.

EVERYBODY SICK ABED

There is a sort of an obnoxious desuetude pervading the court rooms at the court house. Deputy Church is sick abed. Clerk Duff's decidedly under the weather and Deputy Fryer has something on his mind and wanders disconsolately from room to room. Judge Shattuck had to dismiss his jury until Thursday. The lawyers are too sick or indolent to try their cases and they are being passed for the term. Yesterday's Harbough vs Willamette Real Estate Company and to day's Portland Cracker Company vs. O G Bakery Company have both been passed. A case was on before Judge Stearns but after a jury had been impaneled the witnesses could not be found and the case had to be continued to the great disgust of the district attorney. A desperate effort will be made to day to have the prisoner convicted.

COURT HOUSE BREVITIES.

The sheriff will handle about $540 000 in taxes this year.

The sheriff's jail account last month was a trifle over $800.

Julius Klem and Anna Curte have been granted permission to wed.

Eight supervisors will serve the county this year against six last.

Multnomah pays twenty nine and one fifth per cent. of Oregon's taxes [illegible]

F May a German and [illegible] of Sweden have become full fledged citizens.

County Judge [illegible] made an order directing and compelling [illegible] to pay their mother $7 50 per week for her support upon her own application.

The Municipal Courts

In the police court yesterday Charles Horne waived examination on a charge of stealing a bundle of clothes from the rooms of the Y M C A and the court held him to answer before the grand jury under bonds in the sum of $ 00.

Joseph Anderson a 14 year old boy who has been in charge of the Boys and Girls Aid Society at various times was arraigned on a charge of stealing a shirt. He claimed that he only borrowed the shirt for a day on his own responsibility but being pressed to enter a plea he replied "Well, guilty if you want it." The court sentenced him to serve thirty days in the county jail and ordered the Boys and Girls Aid Society to again assume guardianship over him.

Arthur Johnson a young baker made a satisfactory defense to a charge of vagrancy and the court discharged him with a reprimand.

Tim Sullivan the chronic drunkard and saloon loafer, was sent up for sixty days on a charge of vagrancy and John Walsh and Dan Ward were given twenty days and thirty days respectively for begging.

C V Reed and L J Maher were fined $ each for being drunk.

ASCHER DISCHARGED

J Ascher the young man arrested on a charge of assault and battery on Mrs Effie Lake his landlady was discharged by Justice Phelan yesterday afternoon. Ascher claimed that he was ejected from the house through a whim of the landlady notwithstanding the fact that he had paid his room rent. It appeared to the court that the arrest was prompted more through the torrid temper of the complainant than through injuries received and the case was dismissed.

PORTLAND, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 15

THE FUR SEAL QUESTION

The simultaneous introduction of bills in both houses of congress, providing for an abrogation of the contract now held by the Alaska Commercial Company, indicates that the contest over a valuable prize is growing hot. The questions involved in this controversy are rather complicated and by no means easy of solution. To any intelligent individual not personally interested in the issue it would appear that preliminary to any decision in the fur seal controversy and to another award of exclusive privileges such as the Alaska Commercial Company now holds there should be a settlement of the still open question whether seal life in Bering sea is to be protected or not. If that question is decided in the negative then the much coveted prize is no worth fighting about.

Senator Plumb in his resolution introduced on Monday urges the cancellation of all special privileges, except in favor of the natives who are to kill all the seals (and other fur bearing animals) the skins to be transported to San Francisco and there sold to the highest bidder. This would mean that the United States government is to engage in a commercial enterprise of a speculative character as the price of seal skins rises and falls in accord with the pulsations of the London fur market. Such a proposition will be repugnant to a majority of Americans upon its face, and there would still remain the question as to who is to look after the interests of the natives in such circumstances. At present the natives on the two islands of St Paul and St George (who are not indigenous by the way but the descendants of laborers imported from other parts of Alaska by the Russians who found the islands uninhabited) receive forty cents for each seal killed and skinned. This amounts to $40,000 per annum to be divided between sixty or seventy families. The sum total is increased by payment for baling and bundling the skins, and in addition to their cash earnings the sealers are provided under the terms of the lease, free of charge with a sufficient quantity of fuel (wood or coal) and a certain number of barrels of salt salmon. The company has also erected for them, and maintains in repair, comfortable cottages with water pipes and other conveniences. The labor season is limited to three months—June July and August—and it must strike every unbiased mind that these natives are very amply compensated for their brief period of exertion. In addition a good school is maintained on either island at the company's expense.

Under such circumstances these natives have had no opportunity to learn how to take care of themselves—everything has been done for them, they have been children in leading strings and in any free intercourse or struggle with eager business men they would simply perish. On the other hand if another lease be granted by the United States government though the interests of the inhabitants of the two islands should be firmly secured, it would be altogether unnecessary and unwise to make them a prominent feature of whatever arrangement may be made. They have no inherent right to the seals more than any other individuals in Alaska and at the rate they are dying off now the next generation will see the end of them, and this in spite of (perhaps because of) the close paternal supervision established under the terms of the present lease.

Upon the whole if the seals are to be protected it would seem best that the business should be farmed out again, but the government in return for its protection of the lessees should receive full and fair compensation—the revenue derived to be employed in aiding education and opening communication between the widely separated districts of Alaska who have been petitioning in vain for mail service for nearly twenty years. With a regular service of mail steamers the public at large would be enabled to see the country without placing themselves under obligation to the Alaska Company and many industries would be developed, which now lie dormant. Even those who visit Sitka and the glacier region on excursion steamers can form no conception of what Alaska really is. But to this end the lease of the seal islands should not be granted to any firm established in business all over the country like the Alaska Commercial Company. There can be no doubt that they have honestly fulfilled the terms of their contract but there has been too much of them. Their interests were everywhere and they naturally tried to run the country under the plea that under any civil organization they would be the only parties able to pay the taxes. That is happily no longer true. Alaska is developing and in any new country in that stage of growth an overweening element like the Alaska Company is an evil and its influence bad.

Therefore, in arranging for a new lease of the seal islands this feature should be if possible, eliminated and provided against. Under the paternal guidance of this company the natives where they have been under their control have not advanced a single step in independence or ability to take care of themselves. They have received advances in the shape of provisions and hunting gear and direct charity to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars but they have never been taught that debts must be paid nor will they so long as they sell their furs to their incorporated providence alone (the Alaska Commercial Company) at such prices as its agents see fit to give.

Such a state of affairs ought not to exist and could not exist if the lessees of the seal islands were prohibited from engaging in business elsewhere in Alaska. Thus also an incubus would be removed from Alaskan and national politics.

OUTLINE OF THE SYSTEM

What is called the Australian ballot system is undoubtedly growing in favor throughout the country. It has already been adopted in nine states including Massachusetts Minnesota and Kentucky. It would have been adopted also in New York but for the veto of Governor Hill. The latest important declaration in its favor is made by Governor Campbell of Ohio who recommends its enactment in that state. Though Governor Hill vetoed it in New York ex-President Cleveland has recently declared himself in favor of it and the feeling for it in that state is so strong that it is quite certain that Hill will now be compelled to accept the measure which he has heretofore opposed.

The substantial requirements of the system are stated thus: viz Ballots are to be provided at the public expense; no ballots but these are to be used; on them are to be printed the names of all the candidates who are nominated by conventions or petition a short period prior to the election; the ballots are to be distributed only by sworn ballot clerks at the polls to voters for actual and immediate use while voting; the voter is allowed from five to ten minutes in which to retire to a booth conveniently arranged where he secretly marks his choice of candidates upon the face of the ballot or if he prefers writes the name of candidates of his choice in lieu of those already printed; if he spoils a ballot in the process he may get another upon returning the spoiled one which must be preserved by the clerk. Having marked his ballot the voter proceeds directly to the ballot box and without exposing the face of the ballot to any one deposits his vote. When a voter avows himself to be blind or illiterate, he may select one of the ballot clerks to assist under oath of fidelity and secrecy, to make his ballot.

So rapidly is this system growing into favor that its general adoption by our states may be regarded as very probable. Among the chief advantages claimed for it is that it is found to operate wherever tried as a strong counteracting force to machine and ring politics.

BOUNTIES FOR SHIPS

England has long taken the lead of all other countries in paying bounties of one kind or another to encourage and support shipping and her example is followed by most other nations of Europe including even the smaller ones.

France pays two bounties a construction bounty on ship and machinery, and a navigation bounty based on tonnage and distance sailed. Italy likewise pays construction and navigation bounties to home built ships with an extra percentage to vessels so constructed as to be fit for use in case of war. A recent report to our department of state shows that in 1887 the construction bounty paid by Italy amounted to $10,000 and the navigation bounty to $[illegible]. A special feature of the Italian system is offer of bounties to encourage merchant vessels to undertake distant voyages.

The German government is now paying $1 1[illegible] a year to steamship lines to Eastern Asia and Eastern Africa. Russia pays its steamship companies in subsidies a total of [illegible] roubles or taking a rouble at 78 cents $1 [illegible] 80. The Spanish government pays annual subsidies of over $ 200 000 to eight different steamship lines. Even Belgium pays $200 000 in subsidies one of the lines being between Antwerp and New York.

These facts go to show how other countries build up and support their shipping and furnish a sufficiently strong intimation that we must do likewise, if we would build up and sustain our own.

The senatorship knocked down to Cal Brice at the democratic caucus auction the other day, was delivered to him yesterday carefully wrapped in silver gilt paper. The more recondite formality of settling for the article was probably performed previously. The formal delivery was accomplished without any of the expected friction or interruption. Two or three democratic members of the legislature voted against Brice but he had a sufficient majority of both houses. The republicans generally voted for Charley Foster though one man did himself the honor to cast his ballot for Murat Halstead. The election of Brice by the open and frankly confessed methods of bribery and purchase is a discreditable thing but he is less to be blamed than the democratic party of Ohio. The election and its discreditable incidents are the natural and inevitable result of the spirit and practices that have prevailed in the Ohio democracy, since it yielded to the seductions of the Standard Oil monopoly six years ago. As for Brice he simply bought what was for sale in the market place. His part is that of the man who purchases state favors of a certain sort which are at the disposal of everybody who has the money to pay for them. This is a rather coarse practice in politics as in social life but it is not the blackest sin. It is immoral but not so criminal as the the original act of seduction. This in the case of the Ohio democracy was committed by that senile political debaucher Henry B Payne. Before his time, the Ohio democracy was at times disloyal at times dishonest in its economic views and often ignorant and reckless but it was not chronically and neutrally rotten. Pendleton and Thurman were bad enough but they would be a blessed exchange for Payne and Brice. [illegible] the copperhead cheap money, whisky ridden democracy of their time would be a happy exchange for the thing that smells to heaven in its place to day.

Statistics show that from 30 to 70 per cent of the graduates of the Indian industrial schools of the government die within three or four years after their return to the wigwams of their ancestors. The principal cause of this mortality is pulmonary disease. Whether this is due to climatic changes or to the change in habit from an outdoor to an indoor life and back again is a matter largely of surmise but the death rate is certainly an alarming one and one which fully justifies the Sioux chiefs in urging the establishment of reservation schools. It may be doubted, however whether death is not a welcome release to these graduates who with a strong desire for the comforts of civilized life which they have been taught to enjoy are compelled to live after their return from school amid surroundings that they loath. Unless they possess the power of degenerating easily naturally and without friction of spirit it is a wonder that they live even three or four years amid ignorance for which they have learned a profound contempt and squalor for which they have conceived intense disgust. The chiefs assert that their young people thus educated, come to despise their kindred—an assertion which it is easy to believe since it is by no means a new phase of educational development. White parents, ignorant, uncouth but devoted to their children have wept this same result of education in almost every community in the land, but while weeping it have heroically accepted it as a natural adjunct of a development that has left them in the rear.

The latest democratic scheme is an attempt to honor the memory of the late Samuel J Tilden by throwing discredit upon the United States government. It originated in New York of course. Representative Cummings of that state proposing in congress a joint resolution providing for the erection in the rotunda of the capitol a statue of the democratic statesman with a tablet attachment upon which it shall be recited that Tilden was "nineteenth president of the United States elected but not seated" together with sundry democratic hieroglyphics among which may be mentioned a strike. A noticeable oversight in the proposed eulogistic engraving designed for the monument is the absence of all reference to cipher dispatches and allusions to the failure of agents of the great man to steal the electoral vote of Oregon. A monument cannot contain everything however. Posterity will have to go to history for some things which the stress of a great occasion brought out even if the resolution of the New York statesman should be adopted—a contingency not likely to occur this winter.

The formal protest of certain persons representing what is called the Mormon church against the admission of Idaho under a constitution which denies them political right receives more respect than it would in Washington than will be accorded it by public opinion in the West. What is called the Mormon church is not recognized not as a church but as a society [illegible] for the purpose [illegible] the control of the [illegible] the [illegible] and universal [illegible] society which presumes to [illegible] system of education out of the hands of the state which undertakes to substitute for the wholesome American idea of local government the tyranny of a priesthood and for our system of free and equal local taxation the imposition of clerical tithes. This is Mormonism in its mildest subdued modern form. In the light of history, it is organized barratry rapine and murder. It is something utterly foreign to American ideas, and for which there is no place in American civilization. The people of Idaho are well advised in their determination to have none of it in their new state. Wholesale disfranchisement seems a harsh measure, but the end justifies the means. It is a necessary act of anticipatory self defense against a most insidious danger. Mormonism and free institutions cannot exist together. A Mormon voter would be a contradiction and an anomaly. If the congress is wise, such a thing will never be seen in the United States, even if it is necessary to keep every Mormon infested community in a territorial condition forever. It is doubtful if it would be prudent to admit a state containing Mormons even with a constitution disfranchising them unless some security can be given in the act of admission that the disfranchising clause shall never be [illegible].

Clergymen doubtless have a right to conduct religious services in their own churches as they think proper and when they pray are perfectly free to address the throne of grace upon as many topics and to protract such address to as great length as they please and no one not a member of the congregation and a contributor to the support of the minister has a right to complain. But it is respectfully submitted whether it is in good taste whether in fact it is not an abuse for a minister who is called upon to read a formal service at a private funeral at a private house to take advantage of the occasion to weary his audience and tire the ear and patience of the Most High—if that may be said without irreverence—with a long tedious commonplace prayer protracted until all feelings of reverence for the occasion are supplanted by those of impatience and chagrin if not contempt on the part of those who are compelled out of a decent sense of respect to the dead to listen. Twenty simple words on such an occasion, properly spoken would outweigh columns of dull, stereotyped forms of speech got by rote from stale theological treatises or obsolete institutes of divinity. One thing that all ministers ought to learn early is that devotion and solemnity do not reside in repetition of hackneyed phrases and tedious prayers. The spiritual feeling and insight that can produce on such occasions the pure gold or precious diamond dust of speech is rare, and next to it in impressiveness is simple brevity or silence.

Oregonians think that they have had something of a storm. Some indeed have gone so far as to protest that the weather was "dreadful" and a few of the more choleric have insinuated that they intend to "get out of this country." Now, we do not desire to be impertinent, but being an earnest seeker after knowledge, we would inquire where such folks intend to go to get better weather? To California perhaps where, when it rains at all, the windows of heaven open and the country is flooded, or it may be to Nebraska where the blizzard is just now on its annual howl, or to Iowa, where the cyclone cellar is a necessity or to Minnesota where a handkerchief wrung out of boiling water freezes solid before it can be shaken and hung across a line in the open air or away back to New England, where the bleak east winds whistle around the deserted homesteads of a sturdier generation? Come to look around after reading weather reports from other sections Oregon is not such a dreadful place after all, though the luxuriant wheat on its plains and valleys is covered a sufficient depth of snow to preserve it from a possible freeze and the rose buds with which the gardens and dooryards were gay at Christmas, have turned black with the frost. The weather is not pleasant, that is certain but after all the drip of the eaves as an accompaniment of the one [illegible] is more cheerful than the echoes of the northwest blasts that come to us from across the Rockies.

The decision of Judge McConnell upon the motion for a new trial for the Cronin murderers, contains some very plain language. He denies the motion on behalf of Coughlin, Burke and O'Sullivan but grants it in the case of Kunze who he says flatly was convicted against the evidence. After so emphatic a declaration on the part of the trial judge Kunze will probably escape without the formality of a new trial. When he is arraigned the district attorney will probably take the hint and move his discharge. The three others were sentenced to imprisonment for life after the usual protestations of innocence and accusations of prejudice. There is little more comfort for the jury than for the principal prisoners in the judge's ruling. It is full of suppressed contempt for their intelligence and judgment. In the case of Kunze he says the verdict was an absurdity. He might have said so as to all. If the three were murderers they should hang. If they were not they should go free.

John L Sullivan has agreed to meet the colored pugilist Jackson, in "the last fight of his life." This expression indicates a respect for the prowess of the "nigger" that was hardly to be expected in the boastful bully who some months ago talked pompously of the color line and intimated that no darkey could whip him. Since the fight is to come off the interests of humanity will be subserved by "a fight to the finish" between the two which will finish both. The next best thing to this result would be to have the champion knocked out after a complete whipping that will leave him not a point of which to boast.

The senatorial wrangle over the Federal offices for Washington seems to be settling itself in favor of Representative Wilson who has been a quiet neuter in the fight between Allen and Squire. It looks as though Wilson would not only get his Spokane man, Winston appointed marshal but would succeed in making Calkins United States judge though both the senators have recommended Handford. Wilson and the president are both from Indiana and that goes a long ways. So is Calkins by the way.

The blizzard that wrought such suffering and death in Nebraska two years ago has repeated itself being exact as to date and the counterpart in fierceness of the dread [illegible] storm of January 12 1888. No fatalities are reported however a fact that suggests that the inhabitants of the blizzard belt have learned that to defy the fury of a winter storm is the extreme of folly and that experience has taught them better than to [illegible] this season of the year.

The folly of running to catch a street car is witnessed many times every day in this city. The eager pursuer after using up in the chase his reserve fund of vitality and good humor for the entire day drops panting into a seat in the coveted car while his wiser neighbor waits quietly for the next car to come along and takes that. The man who does not see the use of running to catch a car when there is another car running to catch him may be a couple of minutes late at his office but he gets there in good working order and maintains the advantage thus gained in deliberate business transactions throughout the day.

The house of representatives of the Washington legislature yesterday very promptly voted down three propositions for an early adjournment. Viewed from the standpoint of the people who are anxious that the new state shall not be plunged in debt too deeply in the first year of its existence this action is extraordinary but from the view of the legislator who is in love with himself his new found honors and his [illegible] it is quite the natural thing. A needlessly long session of the legislature will be [illegible] resented by the taxpayers and no legislator who hopes for future political preferment can afford to array himself with the [illegible].

Judge Joshua C Knickerbocker who recently died at Chicago was reputed to be a most upright judge. It was said of him that he was the father of every orphan in Cook county, owing to the fact that he so jealously guarded their interests. He was a terror to the lawyer who sought to make a fortune out of every fat case and invariably reduced fees to something like a just figure.

Mlle Rosa Bonheur had the other day at Fontainebleau an experience which may be of use to many art lovers. She saw in an advertisement that there was to be sold a picture attributed to her brush. She went to the sale and found that the painting in question though signed with her name was not only not her handiwork, but was a crude [illegible] of the most [illegible] description.

Arthur Mack ex chief of the Shanghai detective force, asserts that while China has a population of over 400 000 000 yet the criminal element in proportion to numbers is less than 10 per cent of what it is in the Chinese quarter of San Francisco. He accounts for this by the greater stringency of the laws for the punishment of crime in China and the greater certainty in their administration.

The story is told that Edgar Saltus the leading exponent of erotic literature who has been posing among the best dressed men of New York, was recently observed coming out of a merchant tailoring establishment in the Bowery region. This was considered a great breach of good breeding. As a matter of fact there are a great many very well dressed men in New York who do not patronize Fifth avenue tailors, and [illegible] their pocketbooks heavier thereby.

Looking Closely After Her Interests in a Railroad to the Sea

McMINNVILLE, Jan 14—[Special Correspondence]—The committee appointed at the railroad meeting to look after the interests of McMinnville in the proposed road from Salem to the sea elected Hon J W Cowls chairman, and George W [illegible] secretary. They intend to put engineers into the field to find the best pass for a road to the coast east of [illegible] through the mountains will [illegible]. One of the surveying camps is to be made at the Nestucca mill, to operate on the Trask route first. It is also talked that the Portland & Willamette Valley railroad could be built via [illegible] where McMinnville [illegible] and Willamina to the sea and thence Astoria and pass through [illegible] settlements all the way. By this route Portland could reach the coast in little more than sixty miles. Such a line could be built more easily than by any other route from Portland to the sea. This county is able to put up the funds for her share of the road. She has always done her share of this business and can be counted on.

Wisconsin Central Bonds

ST PAUL Jan 14—Special Telegram—A Pioneer Press New York special says: Speculation on the stock exchange in the Wisconsin Central Company's common stock ($12 000 000) has been based on the prospective profits of the contract made in May with the Northern Pacific for its operation by which the Northern Pacific was to receive 65 per cent of the gross earnings of its operation and the Wisconsin Central to retain 35 per cent for payment of its fixed charges. The operation under the contract is said to show a surplus of $ 0 000 over the other fixed charges applicable to payment of interest on income bonds of which $9 000 000 is authorized and $6,[illegible] 000 has been issued and listed on the Stock Exchange. The total interest on the amount outstanding would be $328 300 and if the surplus for five months over other charges is correctly given it would be at the rate of $180 000 for the year as the operating expenses are stated as having been only [illegible] per cent for five months and are likely to be less than the stipulated 65 per cent for the year. The Northern Pacific will reserve, according to the contract, one half of the difference below 65 per cent. The probability is that interest on the income will be more than earned, and the fact that the Northern Pacific would have its half of the difference between 65 per cent and some lower rate of operating expenses as a guarantee fund have probably given rise to the rumor that the Northern Pacific would issue a lower rate of interest security in exchange for Wisconsin Central income.

Interstate Railway Association Survives

NEW YORK Jan 14—An important meeting of the Interstate Commerce Railway Association was begun this morning which will probably decide whether the association shall continue its existence. The organization is a year old and is best known as the "gentlemen's agreement." Rumors of cutting of rates have been rife and this will be a matter discussed. The decision of Chairman Walker holding that the traffic arrangement between the Union Pacific and Northwestern was not a violation of the agreement will also come up. The meeting is being held behind closed doors. The threatened outbreak and rupture in the association was put off indefinitely by the appointment of a committee consisting of Commissioners Walker, Fairbairn and Midgely to consider measures necessary for a perpetuation of the association and to report at the next quarterly meeting. This prevented the airing of grievances at the meeting and everything passed off harmoniously. An adjournment was taken shortly after 1 o'clock with many other questions of importance coming before the body.

TOO RADICAL BY FAR

The Objection to Kinnear's Anti-Trust Bill.

IT COVERS TOO MUCH GROUND

Curiosity as to How the Legislature Will Deal With Corporations—Bills Already Passed—The Code.

OLYMPIA Jan 14—There is no bill pending before the legislature which is the subject of more general comment, or in which more interest is taken than Kinnear's anti trust and combination bill which was framed in compliance with a mandatory provision of the constitution. It will, with the house judiciary committee's adverse report on it come up in the house on special order at 2 P M next Friday and the disposition of it will in a measure determine the position of the legislature toward the corporation, which is one of the live questions of the hour.

"What will be the nature of corporation legislation?" everybody is asking. The corporations look at the legislators, who, in turn look inquiringly at each other, and no one deigns to give a definite answer. The legislature, as a whole is conservative and disposed to treat the corporations favorably and to [illegible] them within reasonable bounds. None but a few Eastern Washington members have offered radical legislation. In discussing corporation legislation, the legislature is disposed to keep in mind this admonition contained in Governor Ferry's first message:

* * * You should avoid the passage of laws which will have the tendency to prevent the investment of foreign capital in the state and discourage the inception of large enterprises. The development of the resources of our state has just begun and any legislation which is too restrictive upon corporations will materially retard the advancement of the commonwealth. On the other hand it is your duty to enact laws which will prevent so far as possible the unjust use of the great powers which are necessarily conferred upon corporations. You have in this respect a double duty toward the people. You should stimulate the development of our resources by encouraging the investment of capital, whether it be that of corporations or that of individuals but you should also enact legislation which will effectually protect the individual against every probable aggression on the part of the corporations.

GOVERNOR FERRY'S POSITION

Governor Ferry's position is so clear that he who runs may read. It therefore devolves upon the legislature, if it heeds his admonition to decide how far it may legislate to protect the constitutional and inalienable rights of individuals without legislating to prevent the investment of money by corporations or individuals or to retard the advancement of the country by corporations. The legislature and Governor Ferry have about the same view on this important subject and for that reason moderate corporation legislation is looked for. A direct blow at capital is the provision of a revenue and taxation bill to tax mortgages. In view of Oregon's disastrous experience with the mortgage tax law the defeat of such a silly proposition is certain. As soon as the law became operative in Oregon the loan companies began calling in their loans and foreclosing on mortgages and within two years over $3 000 000 was taken out of the state and invested in Washington. A terrible condition of affairs existed when the legislature of 1885 met. The law was then amended so that the payment of mortgage taxes was made a matter of agreement in the contract between the borrower and the lender. Naturally the burden fell on the farmer as his demand for money always exceeded the desire of the lender to loan and he always got the worst of the bargain. It is predicted by sound financiers that the passage of a mortgage tax law in Washington would cause the withdrawal of large sums of money and their investment in Oregon. The money market in Washington is in such a condition that these financiers are positively opposed to the passage of a usury law or any law which would in any way affect the investment of money in Washington at this period of its advancement and development.

Kinnear's bill as it now stands is not satisfactory to a majority of the house, and had it come to a vote last Saturday it would have been defeated without doubt. Among its active opponents as it now stands are all the leaders of the house—Lyons, Kuhn, Herren, McReavy, Grant, Randall, Clark, Geoghegan, Grubb, Eddy, Pickrell, Stevenson and others. A respectable number are in accord with the spirit of the bill but regard the bill in its present status either as defective or too broad in its scope or language. Among them are Grant, Hutchinson, Eddy, Judson of Pierce and many others. Some are unalterably opposed to the bill. Among them are Evans, Geoghegan, Clark, Kuhn, McReavy, Stevenson.

As the bill was passed by the senate it has not to exceed half a dozen friends in the house. No one has been found who will accept the seventh section which while the rest of the bill forbids trusts, legalizes trusts in agricultural products and live stock in the hands of the producers and the organization of laborers and artisans into societies for their own protection. This section will probably be stricken out.

THE SAWMILL MEN PROTEST

The bill affects the sawmill men of Puget sound more than any other class. The big mill men have been in a trust for a long time to limit production and keep up prices of lumber. The Kinnear bill if it passes will knock their combination higher than a kite. There is great complaint against the operations of this trust and it is whispered that a man who was formerly connected with it but who has had a falling out with it is here with facts and figures which will expose its workings. It is said that the trust dabbles in politics and makes itself generally conspicuous and besides imposes hardships upon the logger by refusing to buy his logs if he has offered them to one mill and declined to sell if the price is not suitable to him. The mill men will fight to annihilate the bill.

CHAIRMAN HERREN'S OPINION

It is the opinion of Chairman Herren of the judiciary committee that the spirit of the constitution and the intention of the bill are good, and that the constitution is unfortunate in its expressions and the bill does not in any way carry out the spirit of the constitution but is fatally defective and makes an effort to negative a plain provision of the constitution and exempt classes from the operation of the bill upon which the constitution is mandatory. Mr Herren will favor a law if it can be framed carrying out what in his mind is the spirit and intention of the constitution which the Kinnear bill does not do. It is Mr Herren's opinion that the constitution only intended to direct such legislation as would prevent unlawful combinations of capital the effect of which would be to injure the public.

The paramount question continues to be: How shall the code be [illegible]? The proposition for the legislature to take no [illegible] has lost ground greatly and will not be adopted except as a last resort. The senate is [illegible] opposed to it. In the proposition [illegible] there would be as many [illegible] of the code as there are members [illegible] according to Senator [illegible] it would take almost a year for the legislature [illegible] Mr Evans's resolution [illegible] committees of the senate and house [illegible] code committee with the attorney to hire a lawyer to draft bills for the [illegible] letter favor [illegible] not confer [illegible] any one [illegible] because the [illegible] as fast as [illegible] until they are presented [illegible] which would have to be torn to pieces with amendments and the additional printing incurred. Evans's resolution contemplates the employment of [illegible] the capacity of bill drafter. The house has no personal objection to Mr [illegible] ever. Because of his large experience in the compilation of codes, he is [illegible] above all others, but there was [illegible] jection to make him a legislative [illegible] self. Evans's resolution will come up during the week.

There are now more than 250 [illegible] in the legislature.

During last week the senate passed Representative Geoghegan's bill for the [illegible] tion and distribution of the supreme [illegible] reports and Representative Stevenson's bill to prevent deception in dairy products. The latter is the same as the Oregon law [illegible] that it does not provide for a dairy [illegible] ner. Both will go to the governor [illegible] days. Representative Hughes's bill [illegible] employes of fence as to furnish the [illegible] when they are not actually employed passed the senate. The bills passed [illegible] houses up to the beginning of the week [illegible] follows:

BY THE SENATE.

By Landes—To relieve innkeepers [illegible] ties in certain cases.

By Kinnear—For the organization of [illegible] courts.

By Kinnear—Relating to conflicting [illegible] money and property.

By committee on revenue and taxation [illegible] vide stenographers for superior courts.

By Kinnear—To provide for the [illegible] public offenses on information.

By Wilson—To authorize persons [illegible] and corporations leasing or operating [illegible] railway within the state to deal in [illegible] panies organized to irrigate and reclaim [illegible]

BY THE HOUSE.

By Brown of Spokane—Providing for the payment of salaries of supreme and [illegible] judges.

By Meeker—Providing for the appointment of commissioners of deeds.

By Herren—Repealing portions of the [illegible] the compensation of the auditor of [illegible]

By Painter—To establish a jute factory [illegible] Walla Walla penitentiary.

By Plummer—Declaring streets in [illegible] cities which extend over tide lands [illegible] ways, and placing them under municipal [illegible]

By Geoghegan—To provide for the [illegible] incidental expenses of the legislature.

By Ostrander—To protect stock breeders [illegible]

By Clark—Requiring any person [illegible] traction engine on a public highway to [illegible] full stop if a team is met.

By committee on harbors and [illegible] waters—For the relinquishment by the [illegible] any claim it may have to lands reserved [illegible] ernment purposes.

By Stevenson—To regulate the [illegible] ing of newspapers.

By Grant—Compelling express companies [illegible] liver packages and parcels in towns [illegible] inhabitants, provided the same is [illegible] street and number, and the house is [illegible] miles of the express office.

By Stevenson—To define and punish [illegible]

The question of providing a [illegible] sessing railroad property within the [illegible] now receiving close attention. The [illegible] and taxation committee of the [illegible] been hard at work upon a general [illegible] ment bill which will not be [illegible] some time. One of the chief difficulties in hitting upon a plan that will [illegible] Northern Pacific pay a tax upon [illegible] bed, tracks, etc. This thought [illegible] an exemption in the railroad [illegible] charter which is appended:

Sec 2—And be it further enacted [illegible] right of way through the public lands [illegible] same is hereby granted to the said Northern Pacific Railroad Company, its successors [illegible] signs, for the construction of a railroad [illegible] graph line as proposed. * * * [illegible] granted to said railroad to the extent [illegible] in width on each side of said railroad [illegible] may pass through the public domain [illegible] all necessary ground for station buildings, shops, depots, machine shops, switches, tracks, turn tables and water stations [illegible] right of way shall be exempt from [illegible] within the territories of the United States.

The question first to be determined [illegible] whether these last words shall be [illegible] to exempt this right of way in the [illegible] forever from taxation, or just while [illegible] isted as territories, and the importance of this question is particularly noticed [illegible] it is considered that the courts have [illegible] notably in the case of Carland vs [illegible] tory an Idaho case, that this exemption includes the track, station houses [illegible] buildings used in the operation of [illegible] road.

Now read what section 1 of article [illegible] constitution, which relates to revenue [illegible] taxation says:

"All property in the state, not exempt [illegible] laws of the United States or under [illegible] tion, shall be taxed in proportion to its [illegible]

Putting the exemption clause in the congress and the exemption clause [illegible] state constitution together and considering them as a whole it looks as if somebody [illegible] put his finger into the pie in the [illegible]

If the legislature concludes that the [illegible] of way is exempt under these laws [illegible] next question is whether the franchise [illegible] be taxed. The supreme court of the [illegible] States very recently decided in the [illegible] the state of California vs the Pacific [illegible] road companies (127 U S Reports [illegible]) that a franchise received from the [illegible] States cannot be taxed without the [illegible] of congress. As the Northern Pacific [illegible] chise was granted by congress here [illegible] a problem to solve.

The Northern Pacific has about [illegible] worth of taxable property in the [illegible] Chairman Fairweather of the [illegible] in the committee on revenue and taxation thinks [illegible] is nothing to hinder the Northern [illegible] from being taxed.

Cook's local option bill will give the [illegible] men of the house an opportunity to [illegible] their sails some time in the near future [illegible] view of Washington's disastrous experience with the local option farce a few years [illegible] there is considerable opposition to [illegible] and its passage is extremely doubtful [illegible] bill is very strong and lawyers who have examined it pronounce it constitutional [illegible] cal option is not what the majority [illegible] legislature want. It is high license [illegible] asking for. It is said that a bill fixing whisky license at $500 and the beer license [illegible] $400 a year will make its appearance [illegible]

It is estimated that the state will [illegible] about $10 000 from notary public [illegible] year, and between $3000 and $4000 [illegible] hereafter. This money goes into a state library fund, and a bill is in [illegible] tion authorizing the governor, the [illegible] and attorney general to spend this [illegible] augmenting the library. If there is [illegible] thing that Washington needs it is [illegible] library. Its present library has been neglected ever since Mounts Hood and [illegible] were small boys together. Not an [illegible] ation has been made for it for thirty years. It is a library in name but [illegible] fact, and it is more noted for what [illegible] not contain than for what it does [illegible] empty shelves speak volumes for the [illegible] and if reports that once weighted shelves had tongues they might [illegible] some lawyers about the state's possession of such fine law libraries.

TACOMA GROCERS FAIL.

One of the Largest Firms in the City Collapses.

STORES CLOSED BY THE SHERIFF

Competition Too Fierce for Saul & Avery, and Creditors Step In

A TACOMA RESTAURANT ATTACHED

Seattle Clothing Firm Sued for Goods Purchased—Express Agent Skaggs, Missing From Seattle, a Defaulter

TACOMA, Jan 14.—[Special Telegram.]—The retail grocery store of William P Saul, one of the largest in the city, was closed this afternoon on attachments and executions amounting in the aggregate to $7500 About two months ago the grocery firm of Saul & Avery got into financial straits which were tided over by an extension obtained from creditors and a dissolution of partnership Mr Saul continued the business while his partner, William H Avery, embarked in the grocery business on Jefferson avenue

It is understood that the firm made some payments from time to time to a designated trustee and matters so far as the public could observe, were going along quite swimmingly until about two o'clock this afternoon, when the sheriff walked into Mr Saul's store and took possession on an attachment It was rumored in the neighborhood that Mr Saul asked for a short delay in order to settle the matter, and that he started down town and was not again seen

In the meantime the attachments and executions increased until the list included

Lawrence & Palmer	$ 819 62
Reese, Crandall & Redmond	1145 81
McDonald, Lawshe & Co	130 00
A Chamber & Co	150 00
L Wallenstein	43 00
Tacoma Grocery Co execution	2285 94
Merchants' National bank, execution	2248 66
Total	$79[illegible]4 03

An attachment was also issued and served in favor of Lawrence & Palmer vs Saul & Avery for $350 82.

ANOTHER GROCERY STORE CLOSED

About 7 o'clock in the evening the grocery store of W H Avery was closed on an attachment in favor of the Tacoma Grocery Company for $350 89 and McDonald, Lawshe & Co $185 39 This brings the total claims against the two concerns up to $8,640 14, with a probability of further claims to be heard from. It has been impossible to find either Saul or Avery, or to learn the amount of their indebtedness, but it is understood that the failure was the inevitable result of attempting to carry on a too extensive business on small capital coupled with a disposition to wage a reckless competition

The restaurant was closed by the proprietors several days ago The property is not thought to be sufficient to fully pay the alleged debt.

YESTERDAY'S CONFAB

Manager Koehler and the West Side Delegates.

THE PROPOSITION ENCOURAGED

Quarterly Meeting of the Oregon State Horticultural Society.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE W YOCUM

A Railroad Subsidy Refused—The Building Boom—Weather and Trains—The Cable Road—The Dalles Fire

The delegation of West Side business men who are here to confer with Manager Koehler as to the advisability of a speedy construction of the Junction Corvallis road went over to the East Side local yesterday morning to see if the Junction delegation had come Finding no trace of them they repaired to the Southern Pacific's general offices and presented themselves to Manager Koehler

Mr Koehler was prepared to receive his guests and cordially invited them into his private office where all found chairs.

"I saw by this morning's OREGONIAN," said he "that you were coming to see me gentlemen so I have been expecting you and I am sure of my perfect willingness to give you any information in my power and to do anything possible to further the interests of your towns"

The party included Dr G R Lee T W Johnson and W A Wells of Corvallis C Brady of McMinnville J S Cooper, L C Pentland and I W Robertson of Independence and ex-senator Lee Laughlin of North Yamhill

Without any great show of formality Dr Lee of Corvallis proceeded to lay before Mr Koehler the object of the delegations

"We have not come" he said "to induce the Southern Pacific to build from Corvallis on to Junction for we understand that this work had been decided upon once for all and that its execution was merely a question of time But what we desire to secure is the speedy accomplishment of the building We don't want it built in two or three years but we want it built this year Immigration promises to pour into the Willamette valley more in 1890 than ever before We want our share of the settlers and the business it brings As it is not one tourist in ten who goes through the valley sees the west side of it north of Junction, at all We want to be in the world We want you to bring the world to us The Southern Pacific is losing a great deal of trade by not having this through connection for our shippers There are 200 000 bushels of wheat now stored in our section, waiting for the water to rise so that the Oregon Pacific's boats can take it down

"I wish very much," said Manager Koehler, "that you people would prepare some statistics of this character which I can lay before the general officers of the company That has to be my course in the matter anyway, and with such papers at hand, a very good showing can be made"

"How long before an answer could be had after the report was sent in?" some one asked

"Not to exceed three weeks However the vice president of the road, Mr C P Huntington will be here this spring and such matters as this will form the subject of his investigation and consideration The rise in value of steel rails is apt to cut some figure in the situation Indeed it is a question of ready money that has hindered the completion, hitherto of the West Side road to Junction The project had to be considered at the same time as the connection between Oregon and California, and of course the less had to give way to the more important enterprise"

Manager Koehler stated that the right of way for the road had already been secured except in two or three instances in the vicinity of Corvallis The delegation assured him that there would be no trouble whatever in arranging for that

The Eugene Corvallis road was then alluded to, and Dr Lee assured Manager Koehler that Corvallis wanted the Southern Pacific a great deal more than they wanted the Eugene Corvallis line It was of no particular benefit to Corvallis for the Eugene people to tap the Oregon Pacific, but for Corvallis to have through connection with the Southern Pacific was of vital importance "We think we have the best part of the valley," said Dr Lee

"I think so too," replied Mr Koehler and "when we have any visitors I am always anxious for them to get up as far as Corvallis on the West side"

Mr Koehler stated in reply to a question that when the road is built, the probable arrangement of the through travel will be that at Junction the through train would be divided and passengers allowed to take their choice of the east and west side to Portland with outgoing business, tickets could be sold either way and the two sections united at Junction Attention was called to the fact that many would come to Portland by one route and return by the other thus paying double fare

The proposed connection makes according to the survey twenty seven miles of road The cost of the construction will range between $6000 and $8000 per mile owing chiefly to the terms upon which the road can make contracts for steel rails All the rails contemplated in the relaying between Portland and Ashland have been delivered on board ships consigned to the company

Little doubt exists that the resident officials firmly believe in the advisability of the speedy building of the connection, but with so many other important measures before the councils of the road, its place may be very far along on the calendar

All the members of the delegation who were seen expressed themselves as highly gratified not only at the handsome and considerate manner in which Manager Koehler received them but also for very material encouragement they felt justified in drawing from the interview

The president then read his annual report which was a most complete and exhaustive review of the work accomplished during the past year The address was listened to with much interest from opening to close

Mr C Ball suggested the appointment of a committee of this society to confer with the Oregon delegation in congress as to raising the duty on prunes to a protective figure

Mr Allen moved that the chair appoint a committee of three to confer with California societies and fruit growers, to learn what is being done there to raise the duty on prunes also to confer with the Oregon delegation in congress on this important question and request their co-operation with the delegation from California to secure a duty that shall protect prune culture. The resolution was passed

The chair appointed as such committee, E W Allen Chauncey Ball and O P S. Plummer

The president called on Dr O P S Plummer to read a paper on "The Rights of Fruit Growing" That gentleman responded with his customary remarks of a humorous character but he had no paper prepared and claimed to have induced Brother Paulsen to perform a work of importance. He gave a discourse on prune culture, and read from a new work on fruit growing, lately published in California He read what was said there concerning fruit drying by the heat of the sun

Mr Ball moved that the chair appoint a committee of three, Professor Lake and Messrs Lambert and Failing to consider the president's address and report after dinner on the points mentioned there, which passed

Mr Paulsen read a paper on the question "Does the Stock Influence the Future Tree?"

Mr Paulsen's brief address called out remarks from different sources Mr Failing, of the Hill road nursery gave his experience as to grafting in the nursery, claiming that many things influence tree culture as strange results are discovered in connection with propagation of the human family

One gentleman present thought Mr Failing had not touched the main question of Mr Paulsen's address, which was that the character of the stock will impress itself on the future tree Mr Clarke gives an instance that seems to show positively that the root does influence the graft and the tree partakes of the character of the stock when it is very peculiar

Mr Paulsen's address was then referred to a committee to be appointed, and the subject remained open for discussion

AFTERNOON SESSION

Mr Hansen gave his experience in nursery work He claimed that the root has no effect on the top but the top affects the root When he was in the business he noticed that grafts did not take as well as in early days He thought the stock unhealthy and sent East for new stock and for a few years they improved but in a few years became less vigorous as before

Mr Haynes accounted for the difference claimed to exist between the Silver Prune and Coe's Golden Drop was caused by conditions that produced a better quality that was afterward claimed to be a different fruit.

Mr Allen alluded to the fact that French horticulturists propagated by sprouts from the base of the tree, thus producing the identical fruit.

Dr Pilkington thought the potency of the tree resides largely in the root In the animal kingdom that a horse can be bred to his own dam, and the quality potent in the dam becomes prepotent in the offspring. So that early varieties grafted on early varieties will produce good results, and same as to late fruits.

Mr Hansen could not see any agreement between the vegetable and animal kingdoms in this respect [illegible] I am our fruit will [illegible] five sorts of [illegible] charge [illegible] animal world [illegible] products [illegible] that [illegible] it is possible to be perfect

Professor Lake from the committee appointed on the president's address reported as follows, which was received and ordered placed on file

"We, your committee on the president's address beg to present the following report

First—We think it desirable to take action on the recommendation regarding the publication of an annual report And to further this matter we suggest that a committee be appointed to ascertain what sized publication we need what would be the cost and secure persons to prepare papers for publication in such report

Second—We deem it desirable to have a committee [illegible] institutions [illegible] by laws

Third—We [illegible] the view taken by our president that at least one meeting annually ought to be held in conjunction with our local horticultural societies

Fourth—We recommend that [illegible] be taken in the society [illegible] the features of the fruit [illegible] at [illegible]

Fifth—We recommend the publication of 500 copies of the president's address

J E LAKE
W S FAILING
J H LAMBERT

Mr Allen moved that the secretary to be elected shall have 500 copies of the president's annual report printed at the lowest possible figure. Passed

Mr S A Clarke in response to an invitation by the president read a most excellent and well prepared paper on the general subject of horticulture in Oregon

It was moved that a committee of three be appointed to consider the recommendation of the advisability of publishing an annual report for this society and to make such report at the next quarterly meeting in April

The secretary made a report which was ordered referred to a committee of three

OFFICERS ELECTED

The society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year with the following result J R Cardwell president O P S Plummer vice president J H Settlemeir vice-president E R Lake secretary and treasurer The president appointed the following committees on constitution and by laws E R Lake, E W Allen, C Ball

FUNERAL OF GEORGE W YOCUM

Resolutions Adopted by the Portland Bar Kind Words to His Memory

Another meeting of the members of the Portland bar was called in Judge Shattuck's court room yesterday morning the object being to pay respect to the memory of the late George W Yocum The following resolutions prepared by a committee consisting of Judge W H Adams Ira Jones and Hon H H Northup were read and adopted

WHEREAS The sudden death of our brother George William Yocum in the midst of an active life calls for an expression of our esteem and sympathy therefore

Resolved, that in the death of George W Yocum the bar has suffered the loss of an honored and useful member and his family an unselfish and affectionate husband and father

That during the fifteen years in which he was engaged in the practice of his profession in this state by his unfaltering, devoted and untiring industry he won for himself an enviable position and one which entitles him to rank high among those who have finished their labors and have retired to their rest

Judge J W Whalley followed with a feeling eulogy, in which he briefly reviewed the many manly qualities of character of the deceased which won for him the respect and esteem of his colleagues By way of a concise biographical sketch of the life of the deceased he said

George W Yocum was born in Newport Pa on the 27th of April, 1827 He was educated principally in Indiana, where in 1840 he attended the seminary of Mount Carmel, and afterwards went from thence to Green Castle and became a student at Asbury university, remaining there about one year In 18[illegible]0 he attended college at [illegible] and there pursued his studies until [illegible] After leaving college Mr Yocum entered upon the study of the law in the spring of [illegible] in the office of John D H [illegible], Esq at Brookville Ind and was admitted to the bar of that state in [illegible] After his admission he opened an office at Brookville practiced law there for about one year then removed to Oskaloosa, Iowa and thence to Albia Iowa in 1857 practicing there with success until 1874 when with his family he came to Oregon, established a law office in Portland, Or, and was engaged in active law business up to the day of his death In 1869 Mr Yocum was married to Josephine W Craig, who with six children, now survives him

William Foley, H H Northup, Judge W H Adams, Richard Williams Judge Shattuck and others followed [illegible] Mr Yocum as [illegible] one who brought no dishonor upon the profession and in his death they had only kind words for his memory

The funeral took place from the late residence of the deceased No 101 Harrison street at half past 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the remains were interred in Lone Fir cemetery

E D Shattuck, E B Stearns, J W Whalley, [illegible] Williams, J F Caples, I A Stephens, [illegible] B Watson and W M Gregory acted as pall bearers A large representation of the legal fraternity was present at the services

RAILROAD SUBSIDY REFUSED

Because it Was Required that the Road Run Up and Down Hill

The people residing along the Section Line road have been endeavoring to secure the extension of the Hawthorne Avenue Motor line as far as Kelly's butte and they succeeded in raising the subsidy required but there is a hitch in the scheme which is likely to cause trouble. The right of way, at least a satisfactory right of way, has not been secured, the property owners on the line of the proposed road wishing it to follow around the boundary lines of their property This would necessitate the road running in a zigzag line and up and down hills which is not the correct thing for a well regulated railroad Mr George Brown will not accept the subsidy on these terms but if the people can agree on a suitable grade for the road it will doubtless be built. Parties not long since bought a lot of property on Kelly's butte which they intend to put on the market in lots and blocks before long

THE BUILDING BOOM

Plans and Specifications Prepared—Several Structures to Be Erected

Plans and specifications for a handsome brick store, to be erected at the southeast corner of Oak and Washington streets, by Hon H W Corbett, have been prepared by Williams & Williams and brick is already arriving on the ground for the structure It will be 100x100 feet and four stories high and is to be occupied by Haywood Bros, and is to be completed by June 15 Oak street looking from First begins to present a very citified appearance, since the completion of the Weinhard's block at Second and H W Corbett's six story block at Third, and the completion of the proposed block at Fifth will further improve the appearance of the street This building on Fifth the one built to be erected by R. Perkins, at Fifth and Washington and other improvements in prospect for Fifth street will materially improve the appearance of that street, on which the cable cars will soon be running

STILL SNOWING AND BLOWING

The General Situation of the Trains and the Prevailing State of the Weather.

No trains arrived here over the Union Pacific yesterday Superintendent Johnson expected that the delayed trains would all get here by this morning but last evening the outlook was not hopeful, as the storm broke out with renewed violence all over Eastern Oregon

The following extracts from the Union Pacific's weather report of last evening will give an idea of the state of affairs along the lines of the company

Echo, snowing hard, Willier, snowing three inches per hour, heaviest snow of the season Kamela, wind blowing hard, snowing fast, Hilgard, snowing fast Pendleton snowing fast, La Grande, snowing hard, Union snowing and blowing very hard, Powder, snowing steadily Baker City, snowing hard It was snowing hard at Umatilla and all the way down to Bonneville and wherever throughout the Inland Empire it was not snowing, it was cloudy and looked like snow

AT LA GRANDE AND PENDLETON

THE OREGONIAN'S correspondent at La Grande telegraphed the following last evening

"The passenger train that left Portland Sunday at 10 A M arrived here at 5 P M to-day occupying fifty five hours in making the trip The snow plow is to arrive some time to-night and it is thought the road will be opened to-morrow It continues to snow, there being now not less than two feet on a level"

PENDLETON, Jan 14.—Trains from Portland were on time to-day Trains from the East have not yet arrived on account of a wreck at Kamela. West bound passenger train No 3 is held up at La Grande, is reported disabled but nobody hurt. A chinook is expected to-night Thawing has already set in

In view of the above it will be well for the community to accept the situation with the best possible grace, and to reflect that the railroad companies are doing all they possibly can to get the trains through, and that they will arrive in due time The people of Eastern Oregon have no cause of complaint, as two feet of snow on a level all over that country and more coming, means abundant harvests and a good mining season and general prosperity throughout that section.

ON THE OTHER LINES.

The Northern Pacific through train made connections at Tacoma yesterday, and came in about an hour late. The south bound Southern was held to connect

The Southern Pacific delayed trains left Ashland at 1 and 3 P M yesterday They are expected to arrive at 6 and 8 o'clock this morning The regular overland due to-day left Ashland some two hours late and may be expected about noon

No snow fell over the Southern Pacific's Oregon lines yesterday A rising temperature is reported generally being warm [illegible] Following is the bulletin

Ashland—Clear calm ther 28.
West Fork—Cloudy, cold
Leland—Foggy cold
Roseburg—Foggy cold

SOMETHING ABOUT THE CABLE

The Hauling Commenced Yesterday—Inquisitive People Mystified.

An eminent European student of sociology once remarked that he found one fault with America—it had no idle classes meaning those who are able to spend their lives in the pursuit of pleasure. He should have been in Portland and passed along the line of the cable road now building There are swarms of men at work, but they are but a drop in the bucket compared to those that watch them at their labors Many of these people have been worried considerably about the very small aperture left where the cable is to run

"How in the world can you get that big cable down through that little crack?"

"My, My! That's so I never thought of that! What an oversight, to be sure" says the superintendent So the inquirer is as much mystified as ever

Holman & Co began moving the big cable spools yesterday morning about 10 o'clock The first one only weighed seven tons, and they made short work of getting it up to Front and Alder The second one weighed seventeen and a half tons, and was no plaything to handle. The big truck which has been used to haul the cable company's material up to the power house was equal to the emergency and six horses pulled the load out from the cars near the Stark street depot to about [illegible] and Front Here it was on solid ground and it was thought best to leave it and have one of the wheels strengthened The hydraulic jacks were put into use and the axle blocked up The wheel was taken off and will be re-ironed put on again this morning and the big drum taken up to Front and Alder Here the cable is to be inserted through the conduit and dragged along by horses, by means of a grip attached to the cable

THE FIRE AT THE DALLES

It Scared the Natives, but Did Not Amount to Much

Frank Wingate operator in the office of the Union Pacific train dispatcher in this city, speaking of the fire at The Dalles Saturday evening, yesterday said "It was one of the slowest fires I ever saw. The fire broke out in the roof at about 10 o'clock and it was nearly half past 11 o'clock before the flames were extinguished The fire apparatus pressed into service consisted of one steam engine and a hand engine Most of the stock in the store was taken out and the damage was caused more by water than by fire The roof was considerably burned, but the total loss will probably not reach $2000 The fire had the effect of a good scare as most of the storekeepers within a distance of about two blocks at once began to remove their stock to places of safety"

The fire in question occurred in the southeast corner of the block on which the Umatilla house is located The ground floor was occupied by a clothing firm and the upstairs was used as a lodging house

THE WRECK SOON WAS IN FLAMES

Dr C B Darrin Describes the Accident on the Union Pacific Near Sidney, Neb

Dr C B Darrin and wife returned to the city Monday having spent several weeks visiting friends in the East The doctor and his wife were passengers on the ill fated train which was wrecked near Sidney Neb, on the morning of January 10 All of their baggage valued at nearly $700 was destroyed by the fire which added to the disaster after the train was wrecked.

"It was one of the worst wrecks I ever saw," said the doctor to a reporter yesterday and the fact that no lives were lost seems almost miraculous It was about half past 5 o'clock in the morning Our train which was composed of three sleepers two mail cars one baggage car and a dining car was thundering along at about fifty miles an hour We had reached a point about half a mile out of Sidney when I was awakened by an unusual jolting of our car I told my wife that our car must have left the track We were in the last sleeper, and looking out of our window I could see the other cars lying about in every possible shape and position Some were lying on their sides, and others were so badly wrecked that it was difficult to make out their shapes. Hurriedly dressing we went out to see what was the matter By that time the wildest confusion prevailed Men women and children were rushing about half dressed and to add to the calamity the baggage car, two sleepers and one of the mail cars were soon enveloped in flames Only the front trucks of our sleeper had left the track, so that none of our party had any difficulty in dressing sufficiently to make at least a presentable appearance in leaving. The morning was very cold and dark, and few of us realized that the accident which then seemed so terrible would terminate so fortunately so far as the loss of lives was concerned We all expected that daylight would reveal the mangled and charred remains of at least a few unfortunate victims. But such was not to be the case.

"The baggageman, in trying to get out of his car, was knocked down three times by the flying baggage The last time a heavy valise struck him in the face and he fell, unconscious. He was afterwards dug out, and it was found that besides many superficial bruises he had suffered an injury of the spine The assistant baggage man was also pinned down by several heavy trunks, but his injuries were not so serious

"The sleeping car conductor was lying on a lounge in one of the sleepers and when he awoke he found himself in a berth opposite. His mattress and all of his bedding had fallen across the passageway into the berth opposite, exactly as if his bed had been made up there by the porter

"One man did not know what had happened until he awoke in a snow bank, where a number of people were stepping on top of him.

"A man his wife and their three little children occupied berths near the front end of the sleeper next to the baggage car When they awoke they were surprised to find the roof off and the smashed up baggage car so near them that a portion of it projected into their sleeper. The little ones rubbed their eyes dreamily as they looked up at the black sky above them Most of the women were excited and some nearly frantic with fright In one of the sleepers there were several sisters of charity and one, who had lost her rosaries in the confusion of making a hasty toilet carried on as though her loss was greater than that of life itself

"A detachment of soldiers were sent from the fort to guard the mail car which had not yet caught fire They formed in line in a semi circle around it and remained at their post until daylight, when the mail was transferred to another car safe from the fire The other mail car with all its contents was burned

"The crowd of excited men women and children made a curious spectacle Very few were entirely dressed and most of them had sheets and blankets over their shoulders giving the entire crowd the appearance of a band of Indians

"An accommodation train from Sidney transported us to the city, where all took up quarters at the Union Pacific hotel. There everything was done to provide for our comfort, All were courteous and attentive to our wants and their kindness was greatly appreciated We had breakfast and dinner and then were taken by the overland flyer on our way home

"The accident was caused by a broken switch The upper portion of a piece of rail about four feet in length was broken off leaving the lower portion spiked to the ties The break was no doubt caused by the frost as most of the rail were so much contracted that a space of four or five inches existed between the rails The engine and [illegible] trucks of the sleeper left the track Some of the cars were so badly demolished that not a truck remained under them The train must have gone about 100 feet before coming to a standstill after passing the switch

"After leaving Sidney we lost time until we reached Pendleton From Pendleton to The Dalles we made fairly good time, but at Hood river we were delayed over fifteen hours We encountered another blockade and leaving Hood river and arrived here at 7 o'clock this morning"

SHE GOT THE DRESS.

A Novel Method Adopted by a Popular School Marm to Get a New Dress.

"Now children," said the pretty schoolma'am, "black silk is worth $2 per yard and it takes twenty yards to make me a dress I have $20 in my pocket, and my salary is not due for two months. How much longer must I wait before I have enough to buy my dress?" Before anyone had time to wink, a little girl's hand went up "Why, Grace," said the teacher, "you cannot have the answer so soon" "Oh, yes I have, teacher you don't have to wait at all because you can go to the office of the Astoria Real Estate and Trust Company, who are selling the most beautiful lots in Astoria at $70 each, $25 down, remainder $5 monthly Father bought some lots yesterday and he says they are the best bargains in the market and as they advance $10 this week and will advance again in two weeks, he will be $40 better off on his investment, anyway, and you could do the same and get a dress in two weeks" "Grace, take your place at the head of the class, school is dismissed Where is the office of the Astoria Real Estate and Trust Company?" Chorus from the children, "Room 16 northeast corner First and Alder"

GATHERED BY THE RIVER SIDE.

The Kellogg Bros.' Steamers—Alliance Arrived—The O. P.'s Boats—New Life Boat

The Kellogg Brothers steamers which have been tied up during the cold spell in the Columbia slough, have all returned, and are now at their docks near the foot of Taylor street The steamer Toledo was the first to come up the river She left yesterday forenoon for St Helens going by way of Willamette slough She had aboard a cargo of supplies for the farmers, who live at various points on the slough as far down as the Columbia Later in the afternoon the steamer Joseph Kellogg steamed up the river, and was closely followed by the new steamer Northwest. As soon as the ice in the Columbia sufficiently disappears the boats will make regular trips up the Cowlitz river

The steamer Alliance arrived in port yesterday forenoon and now lies at the foot of C street, discharging her cargo of lumber The Alliance arrived at Astoria from Gray's harbor, but, owing to the ice in the Columbia, was forced to lay there nearly a week The captain says the ice is almost broken up and nothing but heavy slush remains, through which the vessel pushed without hindrance

The Oregon Pacific steamers Wm M Hoag and Three Sisters arrived from Oregon City yesterday morning Both steamers had aboard a good load of wheat They leave again this morning for Corvallis.

The Santa Rosa arrived last night, this being her second trip to Portland

Itchy, Scaly Skin

Every night I scratched until the Skin was raw Body covered with scales like spots of mortar. An awful spectacle. Doctors useless Cure hopeless.

Cured by Cuticura

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary change your CUTICURA REMEDIES performed on me About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on and which came off in layers accompanied with itching I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales, being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again In vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and purchased them from my druggist, and obtained almost immediate relief I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared, one by one, and have been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks was entirely cured My disease was eczema and psoriasis I recommended the CUTICURA REMEDIES to all in my vicinity, and I know of a great many who have taken them, and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babies with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express in words the thanks to you. My body was covered with scales and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as clear as a baby's GEO COTEY, Merrill, Wis.

A NEW TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result of this discovery is that a simple remedy has been discovered which permanently cures the most aggravated cases of these distressing diseases by a few simple applications made (two weeks apart) by the patient at home. The following is the full text of the president's report, which shows a most encouraging condition of the affairs of the association:

PORTLAND Jan 14

The close of the fiscal year of the North Pacific Industrial Association, its first operative year of 1889-90, and the assemblage, pursuant to announcement of the stockholders of the association for the purpose of hearing the report of the secretary and superintendent and treasurer, and to elect officers for the ensuing fiscal year, marks an occasion appropriate, in my opinion, for an informal address from myself as president of the association for the period above referred to. I address myself to the self imposed task with no small degree of pleasure and satisfaction, since a review of the work of the association is suggestive of a marked and most encouraging degree of success, prophetic of still more favorable results in the future. Regarding the work of the association from a financial standpoint, the stockholders directors and officers, in view of all the circumstances to be considered in connection with their work, find ample reasons to congratulate themselves. It is neither my province nor my duty to review this branch of the subject in detail, since the report of the secretary and superintendent, and that of the treasurer, will furnish full information in these particulars.

I deem it entirely appropriate however to suggest to those, if any there be who may think that possibly larger returns might have been reasonably expected upon the capital stock as a mere investment, that not only, as is usual in enterprises of such magnitude as the inauguration of the Northern Pacific Industrial Association, did the expenditures for land and buildings exceed the original estimates, but the large sums expended for buildings for the fat stock show and the electric light plant and dynamo must be taken into consideration when a survey of the balance sheet is made. I also call attention to the fact that floral and music hall has been walled in so that in future there will be no disturbance from the noise of the machinery in motion, and that twenty heaters have been placed therein, making it available for concerts in the coldest weather. These additions necessarily involved the expenditure of considerable sums of money. These latter adjuncts of the main exposition building, as well as a number of minor incidentals, unnecessary for me to enumerate, must be regarded as permanent investments, not only adding largely to the intrinsic value of the property of the association as a whole but absolutely necessary to establish the full and well rounded value of the entire plant. And it is not out of place to suggest that still further additions in these directions will be necessary to enable the association to keep pace with the plainly apparent and really marvelous growth of the Northwest. For it must constantly be borne in mind that while the association is in its inception a Portland institution its true scope and purpose, as its name indicates, is the development, in their largest and most useful sense, of the abounding and practically limitless resources of

THE NORTH PACIFIC SLOPE.

And in this connection I may be allowed to remark that during my recent visit to San Francisco, I was not only complimented in the most profuse and agreeable manner upon the success of our first exposition, the size and beauty of the buildings erected, and their adaptability to the purposes for which they are intended, but I was congratulated upon all sides on the excellent judgment manifested by the association in the selection of a title which took the whole movement out of the narrow limits of

A LOCAL FAIR

And made it in the fullest sense of the word a representative of the metropolitan character of our city and of the immense resources not only of the far reaching territory directly tributary to it to-day, but of remoter regions the people of which, seeing what has already been accomplished will, in the very nature of things beyond question be swift to share in the advantages which our annual displays will offer as an advertisement of their mineral, agricultural stock raising, fruit growing manufacturing and other industrial resources. I dismiss this branch of the subject, with the remark that our annual exposition for 1889 was practically confined to local limits. It should be our self imposed task earnestly to draw to the next exposition exhibitions from our neighboring states and territories of such extent and variety as to make the association, in every sense of the word, worthy of its title. In order to be fully prepared to accomplish this end so well calculated to advance not only the best interests of the city and state in which we reside, but of the whole Northwest, I call attention here to the fact which doubtless impressed itself forcibly upon the mind of every careful observer who visited the recent exposition, and that fact is, that the immense area devoted to the displays entered, was barely sufficient for the local offerings. Here I refer again for a minute to my visit to San Francisco and remark that in addition to being complimented on the size and beauty of our buildings and the felicitous selection of a name for the association, I was assured that the exposition was a splendid advertisement for the whole Northwest. And so we may safely rest assured it was. But to give full force and effect and all possible value to this element of our work it is of paramount importance that more space for exhibitors should be made ready. In view of our initial success it is but reasonable to suppose that at the next exposition Washington Montana Idaho and other commonwealths will be eager to exhibit their products and advertise their resources to the swarming thousands who doubling the number of last year's visitors, will make the exposition of the North Pacific Industrial Association for 1890 their objective point. To meet these almost certain demands

FOR INCREASED SPACE

I, therefore, after due deliberation, recommend the construction of another floor in the east wing, flush with the floor of Floral hall, which will add, say, 40,000 feet to the room for exhibitors. In the same line and in order to be able to furnish accommodations to the increased number of live stock of all description which will be entered, I recommend the erection of more buildings of a suitable character in the stock yards. The purchase of an additional electric light plant is another need of the hour which is absolutely necessary to take into consideration. It is certain that eighty (80) arc lights are not sufficient to properly illuminate the immense building at present, and the construction of another floor as above suggested makes the addition of another plant imperative absolutely so. I further recommend the construction of a bridge from the east door of the building to the roadway on Fourteenth street.

LAWNS, LAKES, ETC.

It is well known that from the inception of this great enterprise with which we are all associated and in which we justly take so much pride the development of an attractive system of lawns lakes garden walks, summer houses and recreation grounds in that portion of the property of the association now partially occupied by the stock show buildings has been kept steadily in view. The sloping hills on the extreme west of the grounds under the direction of a competent landscape gardener are susceptible of being made very beautiful. There is room and to spare for several small lakes in which swans and other waterfowl can be domesticated. The grounds can be so arranged that a series of open air concerts and festivals can be made at once attractive and remunerative adjuncts of the association's work, and I suggest that the board of directors about to be elected, take this subject into serious consideration.

The association's property is valuable and increasing in value every day. The institution is in every sense of the word a permanent one closely identified with the best interests of the city the state, and indeed the whole Pacific slope. Everything that a sound and judicious financial policy will justify should be done to increase the attractiveness and popularity of the work in hand. And I really know of no more judicious use which could be made of our funds, if the money affairs of the association will permit or which would tend more to closely identify our home people with the aims and purposes of the association, than the transformation of this portion of the grounds into a pleasure garden where under proper restrictions the young folks, and for that matter, the old ones could escape from the [illegible] of the city and pass their leisure hours. A portion of the grounds, moreover, might be set apart for the proposed zoological branch of the association instead of [illegible] portion of the main building for that purpose [illegible].

THE EXPOSITION FOR 1890

Realizing, as [illegible] that the exposition for 1889 was a gratifying success [illegible] in the fullest sense of the word an exposition [illegible] of large proportions [illegible] heavily handicapped [illegible] where all things considered [illegible] have been expected the primary consideration with each and all of us should be how best to improve upon the measure of success so happily achieved, and as far as possible surpass it. In order to accomplish this so much to be desired result active, hearty, whole souled unity of purpose and action should be the rule with all. Minor differences of opinion as to details should be sunk entirely out of sight. Suggestions should be freely offered, carefully considered and if feasible, adopted. Each stockholder and each director should consider himself a committee of one "on the good of the order" and if recalling any feature or detail of the work of last year in which a deficiency occurred, he should call the attention of the board of directors thereto, either personally or by letter.

The next exposition of the N. P. I. A. is a matter in which, most emphatically, in a multitude of counselors there is success if not safety. I will venture upon a few suggestions to begin with. In the first place I think it will be eminently wise to make strenuous efforts to secure a far larger and more varied display of

FOREIGN EXHIBITS

Than characterized our display in 1889. And I use the word "foreign" as relating to exhibits from regions outside the geographical limits of our own state. Primarily I refer to the products, raw and manufactured, of those of our sister commonwealths whose interests are closely and permanently identified with our own. We are in a position to be able confidently to assure exhibitors that thousands and tens of thousands of visitors, men and women of means and substance, from north, south, east and as far west as the lines will run, will "take in" the next exhibition of the North Pacific Industrial Association. We are neighbors to the world now by rail and steamship. The hotel system of Portland will be so far developed by the time the exposition for 1890 opens its doors that it is certain that, great as has been the influx of tourists for the past three or four years, the volume of visitors will be wonderfully increased during the coming fall. The miners and land owners and wool and cattle and grain and lumber men of Washington Montana and Idaho will find throngs here looking out for bargains. Therefore it will be wise to extend cordial invitations to our neighbors to come and take part with us in our next big show.

I use the word "foreign" in another sense, that is, in relation to displays of skilled labor such as the "silk weaving," "glass engraving," "pottery making," etc., which proved such attractive features of our late display. The members of the new directorate, to whom will be assigned the duty of looking after these important and interesting features of our next display, should lose no time in entering upon the discharge of their duties, and should be able at an early day to report progress, since it is certain that no date is too early in which to arouse attention and concentrate public interest in this direction. The exposition should be made something to which by reason of its assured attractive features, the whole region which it seeks to represent, instruct and amuse will look forward with eager anticipations of pleasure and profit.

THE ART GALLERY

I call special attention to the importance of making the art gallery of 1890 a marked feature of the Exposition. Judicious liberality in this direction will prove judicious policy. To this end not only should a well selected committee be appointed to secure an early promise of generous loans from the possessors of valuable works of art in our own city and state but strenuous efforts should be made to secure valuable contributions from studios and galleries of high repute at the East.

MUSIC FOR 1890

The great value of good music as an adjunct to an industrial exposition was never more thoroughly demonstrated than at our recent display. The association was singularly fortunate in the selection of Liberati's band and it may fairly be presumed that no less care will be taken this year in providing for this special feature of the entertainment which will be offered to our guests.

ADVERTISING

I suggest a judicious and liberal but by no means extravagant, system of advertising the exposition of 1890 in the leading papers of the Northwest leaving the details of the matter with the directorate of the current year.

THANKS

I desire to return my sincere thanks to the directors for 1889-90 and my fellow-officers and particularly to the exhibitors for the same period, for their courtesies and co-operation. I need hardly add that in the future, as in the past, I will devote my best energies in whatever capacity I may be called upon to act for the success of the North Pacific Industrial Association.

A Little Girl Very Severely Injured by a Snowball

The Marshal Should Look After Hoodlumism—The Sewerage Commission—A Narrow Escape—Coat Thief—Miscellaneous Notes

Monday the little daughter of Dr Thielson of Stephens addition, received severe injuries by being struck by hard snowballs thrown at her by a boy. She was struck on the back of the head several times with almost solid chunks of ice, and has been confined to her bed ever since with severe fever causing great concern as to results. She was some better to day and by careful nursing and treatment will be around all right in a few days.

It would be well for the city marshal to make an example in this case or some similar one. No one has objection to the boys having their sport among themselves but in no case should they interfere with any one who does not care to join in their sport. The case here reported is only one among the many that are happening every day and it is the duty of the police to put a stop to it.

Last evening a Chinaman came to Fifth street from Sunnyside on the motor car where he got off and walked to the horse car that was to take him to Portland. As he was passing from one car to the other he was pelted with snowballs by a lot of boys and badly hurt.

HE STOLE BREAD

For some time bread has been missing from the grocery store of Fortmiller & Nichols. The bread was placed by the delivery man on a box in front of the store at an early hour in the morning, and from one to two loaves were appropriated every morning. A watch was set yesterday morning and a fellow named Kr der, well known in this city, was detected in the act of wrapping up a loaf in a copy of THE MORNING OREGONIAN which is left at the store also. He was placed under arrest by Officer Gatchet. Owing to the fact that he is a married man only a nominal fine was imposed on him.

BARBED WIRE FENCE

The barbed wire fence the Southern Pacific railroad has put up on either side of the track from the car shops to the old reduction works is a public nuisance and the city council should require the company to remove the wires and put up boards in their place. There are only two places where there are openings in this fence—one on Eleventh street and the other on the Powell's valley road. It is not an easy matter to climb over a barbed wire fence, as any one can testify who has tried it. Now this fence is an inconvenience and should be changed.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

The secretary of the sewerage commission in his report of the final action of the commission to the common council will transmit to that body the correspondence with sanitary engineers and will thus communicate a great deal of valuable information on the subject. The council will learn for one thing that it costs money to get even a plan for sewerage, but the city must have sewerage no matter what the cost.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM FIRE

Monday night there was a narrow escape from a serious fire at the large livery stable of Bennett & Stuart on L street. During the night coals of fire fell out of the stove in the office in the corner of the stable, and the flooring caught fire and was burning quite brightly when the smoke aroused a young man who awoke and put it out. Had the fire got under way it would have been a serious matter.

ANOTHER BRICK BUILDING

Propositions will be received by Henry Barber, undertaker, corner Fourth and J streets, from parties who wish to rent the two upper stories, containing thirty rooms of a three story brick building to be erected on the corner of Fifth and L streets, and also for store next to the corner.

STOLE A COAT AND OVERCOAT

Monday afternoon Mr Thomas DeBoest hung his coat and overcoat in the back part of his saloon, and then went away. When he came back to get the coat and overcoat he was surprised to find both gone. His loss was about $30. Not the slightest clue has been obtained of the thief.
